Bennett Adds One More B.C. Riding

By JACK FREY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett surprised the entire legislature Friday by announcing he will add another seat for the Kootenays—boosting total membership in the House from 52 to 55.

'Social' Link Admitted Sevigny Flays Cardin

MONTREAL (CP)—Pierre Sevigny said Friday he met a Mrs. Munsinger at a party in August, 1959, but said "I will answer no questions on published statements by her."

Mr. Sevigny, associate defence minister in the last Conservative government, issued the following written statement and refused to elaborate on it:

"I met Mrs. Munsinger at a party during the month of August, 1959. I saw her socially a few times during the next few months and our relationship was just that, a social one."

"I never had reason to believe that she was an agent of any sort and to this day I am convinced that this woman was never directly or indirectly a security risk."

Gerda Alive, Will Talk

Liberals Rushing To Set Up Probe

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—From "death" in the security files of the RCMP, Gerda Munsinger has risen, in Munich, ready to return to Ottawa to tell all.

And in the capital, her living ghost has stunned the Commons—but far from speechless.

For into the roaring turmoil of the two-day uproar in the House, Creditiste leader Real Caouette has thrust the name of former Conservative associate defence minister Pierre Sevigny.

Was it true? he asked, while the Conservatives howled their protest, that Frau Munsinger was well acquainted with Pierre Sevigny?

Was it true, he shouted above the bedlam, that "sex and security" were involved?

And was it true, he demanded, that a second Diefenbaker cabinet minister was "acquainted" with the Munsinger girl?

He put his questions to Justice Minister Cardin.

NO ANSWERS

But there were no answers. The justice minister remaining silent as a stone as he had throughout the tumult of the day.

In Montreal, though, Pierre Sevigny, his wife and daughter standing beside him, denied anything and everything but a social acquaintance with the former German beauty queen whom the justice minister says had a trained espionage background.

(Frau Munsinger—she is a divorcee—has denied emphatically the espionage accusation.)

WILDEST DAY

As the wildest day the House has seen in years ended Friday night, Prime Minister Pearson said the order-in-council setting up the scope and terms of reference of the judicial investigation into the case will be prepared this week-end.

The investigation, the prime minister has promised Parliament, will cover "all aspects" of the case, including all the charges Justice Minister Cardin has made in the House and out of it, and especially at his extraordinary press conference that:

● Security was involved in at least a "risk way."

● Former Prime Minister Diefenbaker "mismanaged" the case, knowing it involved security and failing to turn it over to the law officers of the Crown.

● That "more than one" Diefenbaker minister was "involved."

The crunch of the day in the House Friday came when Real Caouette set out to read into the record the Canadian Press summary of the Toronto Star's story of the finding of Frau Munsinger alive, well, talking

Cardin Career Gambled On Shaky Odds

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Lucien Cardin may forfeit his political future on the outcome of the Gerda Munsinger inquiry.

Already, there is evidence that Mr. Cardin has staked his career on a case built on shaky evidence.

CRITICAL AREA

According to sources here, the top-secret file of Miss Munsinger does not substantiate, as Mr. Cardin claimed, that she was active in espionage before she came to Canada in 1955.

This is a critical area for any judge to examine in deciding if the Diefenbaker government erred in the so-called sex-and-security scandal.

People who knew her here and in Montreal cannot believe she was a spy and she, too, has denied it.

Looking through Mr. Cardin's statements in the past week, it is clear he was badly informed on at least four points:

● Miss Munsinger, he said, had died of leukemia. But, as her resurrection showed Friday, she is healthy and happy.

● Miss Munsinger's name was Olga. Her name, in fact, was Gerda.

● Miss Munsinger left Canada for East Germany. But she was found in Munich, which is in West Germany.

● The name in the case, blurted out in the Commons eight days ago by Mr. Cardin, was Munsinger. But it was Munsinger.

HADN'T SEEN FILE

At his celebrated news conference, Mr. Cardin admitted he had not seen the file.

Former Tory justice minister David Fulton, who has seen it, has told Parliament there was nothing improper in his government's handling of the case.

Having erred, apparently, on four or five points about Miss Munsinger, the questions being asked here are:

What does Mr. Cardin really know about the file? What exactly is in it? And how many other points does he have wrong?

END OF ROAD?

If Mr. Cardin is wrong in his contentions that Mr. Diefenbaker mismanaged a case involving a security risk, it would be the end of the road for the minister and Prime Minister Pearson.

If he is right, the same would apply to Tory leader Diefenbaker.

Tory sources here have contended that security was not involved in the case.

The stories go that Mr. Diefenbaker called in a minister and hawled him out over an affair with Miss Munsinger, but the matter died there.

Philip a Hot Astronaut

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Astronauts plan to perform next week Prince Philip's first flight in space with another satellite, the Gemini 8 astro-

The prince, a veteran pilot, drew praise from two of the U.S. spacemen, Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and Lt. Col. Edward H. White II.

"If we have many more people who do that well, we (the astronauts) will go out of business," said White.

"He's a good pilot," echoed McDivitt, who sat with the prince in a mock-up version of the two-man Gemini spacecraft, perched about 15 feet off the ground in a steel frame with an Agena rocket suspended out front.

Obviously enjoying himself, the prince took charge of the spacecraft on three successful docking runs, manoeuvring the Gemini and Agena with controls in the cabin. The Agena slipped gently into a docked position with accurate pilot commands. Philip, now on a tour of North America, spent nearly three hours at the Manned Spacecraft Centre, training base for the U.S. astronauts.

Philip was guest of honor Friday night for a $100 to $1,000-a-plate banquet, estimated to raise nearly $20,000 for a Houston Variety boys club.

He hopes similar dinners during his tour will raise more than $1,000,000 for charitable projects sponsored by Variety Clubs International, of which he is a life member.

The three-day Texas visit ends today with a three-hour stop in Dallas to discuss the operational performance of a British-built passenger aircraft.

Canadian Gives Ho Note from Pearson

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning conferred with North Vietnamese leaders in Hanoi for three days this week, the North Vietnamese news agency reported Friday.

The agency, in a Hanoi radio broadcast, said Ronning carried to Hanoi Prime Minister Pearson's reply to a Jan. 24 letter from President Ho Chi Minh giving North Viet Nam's terms for opening Viet Nam peace talks. The contents of Pearson's letter were not disclosed.

TWO-MAN TEAM

The agency said Ronning, 71, arrived in Hanoi March 7 accompanied by Victor C. Moore, Canadian officer of the three-nation International Control Commission for Viet Nam. It said he conferred with Premier Phan Van Dong and Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh.

Ronning arrived Friday in Saigon, the South Viet Nam capital. Reuters news agency, which said Ronning was not available for comment on his mission, said he was reported planning to go on today to Hong Kong and then to Canada.

STAND EXPLAINED

The North Vietnamese agency said Foreign Minister Trinh clearly explained to Ronning the stand of North Viet Nam, already expounded in Ho's Jan. 24 letter to Pearson and in government statements on the Viet Nam situation.

Bloodhounds Clash

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It will take Parliament a long time to live down the shame of the past two days. The highest court in the land became an instrument in the hands of men determined to destroy other men.

It was like watching a cock-fight. All but those who lust for blood left the historic chamber Friday night with a feeling of total revulsion.

"Sick" was the word members on all sides of the house—and newsmen—to describe it.

Only the superb sense of timing and unfailing sense of humor displayed by speaker Lucien Lamoureux prevented chaos. It's depressing to think that things will get worse before they get better.

It's easy to blame Prime Minister Pearson, who obviously lost complete control of his cabinet and parliament.

It's even easier to blame Justice Minister Cardin who sparked, then bulled through the whole sordid affair.

But that's too simple to be fair.

There were suggestions in the last campaign they were in some way connected with arson, bankruptcy and even murder.

These attacks culminated when Conservative leader Diefenbaker told the nation a vote for the Liberals was a vote for organized crime.

Stung beyond endurance by fresh attacks in the past few weeks over the Victor Spencer case, they finally succumbed to the temptation to fight fire with fire. All the venom they had stored up over the years spilled out in the Commons and poisoned parliament.

On the surface, the issue was simple. Mr. Cardin told a press conference that the Munsinger case was in some regards worse than Britain's famed Profumo sex and security scandal.

He accused Mr. Diefenbaker of "mismanagement" the case.

He said more than one Conservative minister was involved with a girl who had been a spy before she came to Canada in 1955. But he refused to say which ministers.

So more than 20 privy councillors, including two lieutenant-governors (one now dead) and a former prime minister were impugned. They and their families are the targets of vicious gossip swirling around this city and their ridings.

Rioters Killed In India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Mobs swept through Calcutta and surrounding towns in eastern India Friday in the second day of food riots, setting street cars afire, looting and throwing bombs. Police shot nine rioters dead.

In an uproarious session of Parliament, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said the riots were due to "deliberate plans for violence" by leftist political parties.

Liberals Rush Probe

and prepared to tell it to the judge.

The Conservatives, who for two days had been clamoring for the justice minister to "name names," fought like tigers to prevent Real Caouette from doing just that.

Erik Nielsen, Conservative MP for the Yukon, known by the Liberals as "Mr. Prosecutor" for the opposition, accused Mr. Caouette of "trying to take the newspapers off the label hook" by "naming names" into the Hansard record and so making publication privileged.

'ADD TO SLANDER'

Mr. Caouette denied it. He was simply doing, he protested, what the Conservatives had demanded he do.

There were other cries that it would simply "add to the slander."

Former Conservative veterans minister Churchill suspected Mr. Caouette was running interference for Mr. Cardin, "protecting" him, by "naming the names he could name."

Supporting the Conservative

position, acting speaker Herman Batten ruled that Mr. Caouette would be out of order in reading the Canadian Press summary of the Star into the record.

FULL SPEED AHEAD

But this didn't even slow down Mr. Caouette.

He pressed on, full speed ahead in a running battle with the Conservatives that made for an exciting hour.

Time after time acting speaker Batten butted him down but, irrefragable, up popped Mr. Caouette again every time.

When he showed signs of weakening—which wasn't often and wasn't much—his Creditiste desk-mate, the machine-gun talking Gilles Grégoire, filled in.

The Conservatives were "afraid" now, he charged, that the names they wanted named were going to come out.

'LOOK AT THEM'

"Look at them," he cried in scorn, pointing an accusing finger at them, "sitting there like whipped dogs."

Finally, Mr. Caouette "backed into" it.

He didn't read the Canadian Press report.

He simply based his three questions on it.

And there was the name of former associate defence minister Pierre Sevigny for all to hear—and now to read.

Finally, as the grimy, gritty day ground to its dismal end, Gordon Fairweather, Conservative MP for Royal, and former attorney general of New Brunswick, his voice shaking with emotion, cried:

"In God's name what are we doing this day?"

"This place is being fouled."

Bennett Adds Riding

will now be amended to provide for three new members.

He said in the corridor he changed his mind because of the government's two-river development policy.

"Because of the Peace River development in the north we added two seats there, and because of the Columbia River development we're adding an extra seat in the Kootenays," Mr. Bennett said.

Harry McKay, 15th M.L.A. to speak on the bill during the afternoon, said, "This may be the last chance I have to speak for the Kootenays in the House."

He asked that if the government does nothing else to the bill it should at least split the Columbia River riding (formed by merging the present Columbia, Revelstoke and Kootenay ridings) because it is too large.

Mr. Tisdale, who spoke about the same time, said he regretted that the area called Saanich has lost its "centre of influence" in the legislature.

He said that while redistribution is a forward step, it doesn't go far enough, and for that reason he is not prepared to support section three (the re-alignment of boundaries) of this bill.

Mr. Robinson told the House "we should never have gone for redistribution in British Columbia this year."

'WORTH THREE'

He read a telegram from a voter in the "Lillooet riding" which he said expressed the opinions of many people in the rural areas.

The sender of the telegram said he considers that "one vote out here is worth three of the bloodsucker, welfare parasites" who live in the larger cities in this province.

The Sacred backbencher concluded: "As it stands, I'm afraid I've still got to vote against it."

Petit Mal Attack Like 'Day-Dream'

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Thank you for explaining petit mal epilepsy. I didn't realize how brief a seizure can be. You described my 13-year-old daughter to a T. We thought she was day-dreaming. After reading your article, I took her to the doctor and he found it was epilepsy. He put her on medication and she is doing fine—MRS. B. H.

I appreciate your letter, Mrs. B. H., because it is an example of exactly what I am trying to do with this column. There is no reason why people should know the significance of all symptoms. If they did—well, they'd be doctors; yet from high school graduation, another seven years, minimum, and usually closer to 10, are required to become a doctor. For specialists, even more.

Even after that, it takes a doctor some more years of experience to accumulate a feeling or understanding for what people know, and what they want to know.

Guided by letters from readers, I try to write about the things that need more explanation. Your letter is a good example of this.

WELL KNOWN

Just about everybody has heard about epilepsy—that is, people know about the severe, or grand mal, type, which causes the patient, on occasion, to go into a violent spasm. But not so many people know that milder cases are really more numerous.

In the petit mal type, the patient doesn't collapse in a convulsion. Rather, there are very brief, but usually frequent, attacks which last only a second or less. There may be several or there may be dozens in a day. When this type of attack strikes, the patient doesn't fall down, or have any other strongly obvious symptom. Rather, he just has a momentary pause in activity. And then he goes on doing what he was doing before.

Both types can be helped by medication.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is a "flu" shot supposed to immunize against the common cold? — J.M.S.

No, it isn't. And it won't. However, some common colds are really a type of mild flu, so shots will protect against them. Some vaccine also protects against certain forms of what we used to call grippé, and that's helpful. But there are dozens and dozens of scores of varieties of the common cold that are not prevented by flu shots.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the best thing to do at the first sign of a sore throat? I mean to be especially susceptible. — E.J.F.

An old standby remains as effective as anything: Gargle with a hot, weak salt solution. Use a quarter teaspoon of salt to a glass of water. (Too much salt is irritating.) Have the water as hot as you can stand it, because the heat is soothing. Repeat every hour.

Sevigny Met Gerda 'Socially'

"A despicable, rotten little politician, who certainly should know better, came out with some gossip, gathered heaven knows where, stating that this woman, a so-called security risk he said, was from Eastern Germany and was now dead and that he wanted to pass on to the offensive in order to justify the despicable actions of his own friends and his own party."

LONG-FORGOTTEN

"What was a long forgotten incident has been brought to life again and Mrs. Munsinger, supposedly dead, supposedly an East German, has been found very much alive in Western Germany."

"I wish to state with no restrictions, that I have no intentions to offer explanations or apologies to anyone. If there had been any explanations which would have had to be made, it would have been done to the person at my side. (Mrs. Sevigny was at his side when he made the statement.)"

"I happen to love and respect my wife and my children and they have given me ample proof that they love and respect me. We are in this fight, and it shall be a fight, together, and we shall see it through together."

"I shall let no one hurt my family more than it has been hurt already. I shall not permit anyone to slander me more than has already been done. I shall not permit the respected name of the Sevigny family to be dragged in the mud or to be disparaged against."

"I am not going to defend myself. No, I shall attack with every means that the law puts at my disposal and others to find out who is at the source of this infamous slander."

'UTTER CONTEMPT'

"I shall ask the soldiers, who by the thousands fought and bled with me during World War II, if they believe that Pierre Sevigny on any Sevigny for that matter could betray this Canada that the Sevignys love so much, and I shall expose to the nation in my name and in the name of the millions who are equally outraged our total and utter contempt for this cheap despicable little man, Lucien Cardin, the supposed minister of justice who has dishonored his oath of office, who has brought this odious, erroneous message in front of the public for dirty, petty political reasons on yet, as he has implied, in order to secure political vengeance, who is disgracing Parliament and making a farce of his high cabinet position, who should resign both from the cabinet and Parliament or yet be expelled from both places which he is disgracing as they have never been disgraced before or since Confederation."

'NOT HIDING'

"To you, my brother Canadians, I say this: We are not hiding. I am not running. My head is carried very high."

"I am coming out fighting and believe me, I seldom lose a fight."

Mr. Sevigny is a stockbroker with the Montreal firm of Flood Woodstock.

Paris Sees U.S. Pullout From Bases at Year-End

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle expects American bases in France to be evacuated by the end of this year, highly-informed French sources disclosed Friday.

It could not be learned immediately whether de Gaulle had similar thoughts concerning Canadian bases.

Shift to U.K. Likely For NATO

By GENE SHERMAN
Copley News Service

LONDON — NATO headquarters and United States troops now stationed in France probably will move to Britain if President Charles de Gaulle succeeds in splitting the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Rumors of such a move, long-discussed, increased twofold after de Gaulle demanded that U.S. forces in France be placed under French command and announced plans to withdraw his forces from integrated NATO command.

Official British and U.S. sources neither confirm nor deny a report that the British government had extended an invitation to Washington to relocate NATO headquarters in London.

A British source said an exchange at government level has been proceeding for some time concerning the entire situation.

A U.S. diplomatic source wondered rhetorically in the event de Gaulle's disruption reached an untenable climax: "Where else would we go?"

Exchanges between President Johnson and de Gaulle have not closed the door on further negotiations and the diplomatic and political stakes are extremely high.

For Prime Minister Harold Wilson, now engaged in a national election campaign, the subject is potentially embarrassing.

Meanwhile, there is speculation that the 26,000 U.S. troops in France are practically on their way over to join the 21,000 in Britain. With dependents and civilian employees, there are about 65,000 Americans in France and 51,000 in Britain.

New Space Duo 'Ready'

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Gemini 8 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott sailed through an intensive medical examination lasting 4½ hours Friday and were declared "ready for flight" into space next Tuesday.

While doctors listened to their heartbeats and squeezed a pneumatic bubble to measure blood pressures, the Gemini network hummed through a complicated rehearsal so each ground station around the world knows what to do when Scott "walks in space" 1½ times around the globe.

Venezuela Next Stop

CARACAS (Reuters) — Three destroyers of the 1st Canadian Escort Squadron, commanded by Capt. Richard Hugh Leir, are at call at the Caracas port of La Guaira March 18 for a five-day courtesy visit to Venezuela. They are the Saguenay, Nipigon and Kootenay.

The astronauts are scheduled to blast off at 11:41 a.m. Tuesday, 101 minutes after an Agena target vehicle rockets into space on the nose of an Atlas booster poised 6,000 feet from Gemini launch complex 19 at Cape Kennedy.

They plan to rendezvous with the Agena on Gemini's fourth orbit, fly in formation with it for 45 minutes then gently shove the nose of their bell-shaped capsule inside a collar on one end of the Agena, where mechanical clamps will join the two satellites together.

Scott's space walk — which will last nearly 2½ hours — is scheduled to begin Wednesday morning after rendezvous and docking with the Agena has been accomplished. Armstrong is scheduled to uncouple Gemini and the Agena while Scott is outside.

Callaghan-Heath

Sterling Stirs Tempest

LONDON (Reuters) — James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, stepped up a row over sterling with a strong attack Friday on Conservative Opposition Leader Edward Heath for trying to make it an election issue.

He opened the governing Labor party's campaign for the March 31 general election with a charge Heath was guilty of contemptible behavior, and said: "I hope that from now on he will dry up on this subject."

Callaghan rejected the opposition leader's claims that government moves endangered sterling and insisted recent weaknesses in the currency were due to pre-election speculation.

The chancellor said he believed a run on sterling could be avoided during the three-week campaign. "That is why I am anxious that no partisan statements should be made to lessen the strength of the pound," he said.

Water Take-Over

ON THE FACE of it there appears nothing too dreadful about the bill introduced in the legislature which would return to the Crown the water rights of the Greater Victoria Water District. This proposed seizure would resolve the dispute between Victoria and Central Saanich over the price the latter should pay for the water it draws from the city-owned Beaver and Elk Lakes. It would enable Central Saanich to be awarded the rights in that area under licence; it would give the Greater Victoria board the licence for its present main sources of supply, and it would make them both customers, at a low rate, of the province.

According to the estimate of the deputy water resources minister this would not involve any significant increase in the price to the consumer in the Greater Victoria district—only about three cents a year on average. Nor, presumably since title to the lands would not be affected, would it interfere with the Sooke Lake watershed logging operations that bear a large part of the costs of expanding the system.

But there nevertheless are such ramifications of the intended take-over that the manner of its introduction can justly be criticized. Mr. Williston "sprang" it on the municipalities of Greater Victoria in a way that leaves scant time for the careful study the measure should have.

It opens up several disturbing questions.

For instance, will Victoria's Beaver-Elk Lakes land retain its tax exemption if the city no longer has the water rights which give it this status?

If Central Saanich receives the rights in the watershed under licence, will it or the province be in control of the uses of the lakes and the surrounding property, and to what possible effects?

There is a statement from the water resources minister that this is an interim arrangement; that there is not sufficient water in the lakes to supply the growing needs of the peninsula and that eventually, the Victoria water district may have to pump more into the lakes to maintain the level. Who will bear the cost of providing the works for this purpose?

The proposed legislation will be seen as a triumph for Central Saanich and for the Saanich M.L.A., Mr. Tisdale, who was instrumental in its introduction. But where there are winners there are generally losers, and in this case it could prove that in the long run a whole Greater Victoria community is in the latter category.

For this reason the suggestion that the bill should be withdrawn until the next session and thoroughly explored in the meantime is to be commended. It has been hurried in. It should not be hurried through.

Ottawa Spectacular

WITH THE APPROACH of Canada's hundredth birthday citizens should be able to congratulate themselves that we have reached a political maturity.

But events of this season of the House of Commons and that immediately preceding it, must have shaken the faith, as well as the patience, of most of the electorate.

The spectacle of the past few days, the charges and countercharges, the insults, vituperation and generally unbecoming behavior have disgusted many Canadians, and it cannot be doubted, has caused the raising of eyebrows and expressions of dismay from friends abroad.

If there is one thing on which Parliament's prestige depends more than any other it is dignity.

Dignity would seem to have departed from the House of Commons.

We do not expect always inspired leadership in government, or in Opposition, but we are entitled to expect, and demand, dignity and integrity. Debate—if it can be truly categorized as such—has in the past few days degenerated to a point where the one is lost and the other badly tarnished. For where there are charges there must be suspicions; and where there are suspicions there will be questions.

No royal commission of inquiry, no matter what its findings, will ever totally remove the stigma which these suspicions have painted on the record. For it is a sad fact that people remember the accusation rather than the verdict, and the mistakes rather than the achievement of a man.

There is one thing of which this Parliament can be assured: the people of Canada will never forget in their lifetime a display that cannot help but have degraded us in the eyes of all observers.

Why Not?

THE RUSSIAN national hockey team has again asked to play exhibition games with an NHL club, in this instance the Montreal Canadiens. Two thumbs have been turned down on the idea.

The British president of the International governing body says the rules forbid games between amateurs and professionals and he is utterly opposed to any such meeting. This is a stiff social relic long outmoded by modern society.

Where in any sport there can be harm in professionals mixing for exhibition purposes with amateurs is a mystery to most sports followers.

For his part the president of the Canadiens is no more encouraging. He objects to his club meeting the Russians because he says, with some truth, the latter are really professionals. Actually in any major sport nowadays there is scarcely a true-blue amateur to be found, but he wants the Soviet team to come out flat and admit their professionalism.

Until then, he adds, "lets get things in the right perspective."

The spectators at the world amateur tournament in Yugoslavia are not likely to be greatly interested in the niceties of pro-amateur distinctions. What they see on the ice are hockey teams carrying the colors of competing countries, and when Canada, the home of the game and the producer so far of its highest skills, does not come out on top the "perspective" runs very much against this country. Our national prestige takes a drop all over Europe.

The air would be cleared and things put in a true perspective if the Russians could play exhibition games against either the Montreal or Toronto NHL clubs. Then there would be no doubt as to which country of the two was the real champion of ice hockey.

Washington Calling

Debate That Shakes a Nation

EVENTS have put an end to the so-called great debate on Viet Nam and the rest is not silence from the opponents of administration policy it may best be described as wishful waiting.

From the beginning there was no doubt about the outcome. The power of the presidency is so great that once he has committed 200,000 men on the ground in Viet Nam no reversal, nor for that matter even modification, of policy was conceivable.

The hearings before the senate foreign relations committee made the country more aware of the risks involved in the threat of a greatly enlarged land war in Southeast Asia. Educational on how the U.S. got into Viet Nam, the debate contributed little means for getting out other than the Gervin plan, which the president seems as slow surrender.

But whatever the immediate practical result, which was minuscule, the consequences assessed in this relatively quiet aftermath can be reckoned as formidable. The belated among the president's closest military advisers was that the debate would prolong the war at least a year, with the Communists seizing on every word spoken in opposition to Viet Nam involvement as proving the United States will not stay the course.

The validity of this forecast is less important than the fact that men highly placed gave it full credence and presumably based their planning for the war on it.

The mournful attitude at the top was that while the swelling controversy had to be aired it could only be harmful. When a high administration official spoke feelingly to the president about his troubles with a congressional critic on another score, Johnson is reported to have interrupted to say: "Don't talk to me, I've got Fulbright (Sen. J. William, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee). But he's doing what he has to do. That's the way it is under our system."

On the political front at home the result of the seven weeks of argument promises to be more far-reaching and more lasting. The division was within the Democratic party as one faction assailed another. The 13 Democratic senators who signed a letter asking Johnson to consider continuing the pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam will not soon forget the curt heads-off they got in reply. As the farthest out in opposition to administration policy, Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) made reckless statements about the president and his aims in Viet Nam.

Playing their game of restrained silence, the Republicans are now opening up in this gap in the ranks of the party in power. That will be their big gun come the fall campaign—the president and his party are so divided they cannot be entrusted with the conduct of the war. We have supported the president, the Republicans are saying, as his own party turns against him.

In this opposition, resigned for the time being to watchful waiting, believe that public opinion is swinging in their direction. They point to recent polls, noting that the president is a devout poll watcher. A Louis Harris poll showed that support for the president's handling of the Viet Nam war dropped 14 points in six weeks. In polling terms this is a dramatic slump.

Concerned by this shift, the opposition hopes, the president will slow the escalation of the war. All the evidence indicates, however, that a steady progress in the military commitment planned long in advance is going forward on schedule. As the debate went on 10,000 more American troops were being sent into Viet Nam and preparations were being completed for the additional 20,000 just announced by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. Senator Fulbright feels he can carry on the educational process with his hearings on Red China. But without the fire of controversy and the red eye of television focused on the hearings they will get far less attention than the sessions that saw Gen. James Gavin, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, George Kennan, Gen. Maxwell Taylor and other friends and critics of official policy sparring with committee members. Fulbright has no regrets for his course, and opinion sampling in his home state of Arkansas shows support for him, if only because he has stood up to the president.

Caught in the middle of the Viet Nam barrage was Sen. Mike Mansfield, majority leader respected by his colleagues on every side as one of the most sincere and dedicated men in public life. Mansfield's report to the president, following a round-the-world trip, on the danger of an open-end land war in Asia was a central point in the debate. For the future Mansfield intends to press at every opportunity for reopening the Geneva Conference of 1954 as the only hope of peace.

The president and his vice-president, Hubert H. Humphrey, are taking their oath to the country with strong emotional overtones. Opinion polls serve a purpose. But next Nov. 8 when millions of Americans walk into the privacy of the polling booth will be decision day.

Rebels on the Backbench Have Allies in the Cabinet

PERHAPS it hasn't struck you yet—but take a look for a moment at the federal cabinet.

See something familiar?

Like perhaps a resemblance, in a very special way, to the federal cabinet of four years ago?

To former prime minister Mr. Diefenbaker's minority cabinet?

You'll remember then how Dief was under fire from his back bench, and how there was snapping and snarling at first, and then something much worse, disastrously worse, in the cabinet.

Well, there's something developing in this Parliament that threatens to become a match for it.

And that, of course, is the mounting antagonism Prime Minister Pearson is encountering in a widening circle on his back bench, and the clash—or worse—of personalities and principles in his cabinet.

Let's count the roll of what plainly, in greater or lesser degree, are the "rebels" in the back bench ranks.

Well, there's Ralph Cowan, the blunty outspoken MP from Toronto's York-Humber who is so openly hostile to the Liberal leadership he publicly deprecates, even ridicules, the prime minister. Mr. Cowan, who can be faulted for his unquestioned devotion to what he considers the best interests of his country and who never wavers in his firm beliefs, desparingly deprecates official government policy on a dozen or more grounds.

He says it's not on Quebec nationalism and is selling Canadians a bilingual line of shoddy goods. He charges the prime minister is in contempt of court and worse in committing the death sentence of 30 successfully convicted murderers. He protests government indulgence of CBC in its $100 million extravaganzas. He fought the new flag. And that's less than half of it.

Then there's Bryce Mackenzie,

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

MP for Montreal's Verdun and former Liberal whip, who is openly and proudly a "One Canada Man," and dead against Quebec's "opting out" into what some of its extremists say they hope and expect will be "one stateism."

Alexis Caron, MP for Hull, Quebec, and a former parliamentary secretary to the prime minister, opposes his leader's special brand of "New Politics," and claims the administration is being undermined by favoritism and nepotism.

Richard Cashin, the young Liberal blood from the Pictou-Kill country of Newfie, has been voicing doubts, even questioning the justice department's special brand of justice in handling security cases.

Steve Otto, MP for Toronto's East York, has been almost as unhappy explosive as Ralph Cowan over the CBC extravaganzas-of-the-mild-mannered and has got into Thomas Minister Sharp's orange-colored hole with the ultimate fiscal sin of questioning government policy on the 11 per cent sales tax of production machinery and construction materials.

Finally, there is James Brown, MP for Brandon, who has been actively unhappy—and he's only one of what could be a Liberal majority—with the government decision of rejecting the urgently-needed $25 increase in the old age pension to what surely would be scarcely even a subsistence level of a monthly $100.

All these members, at odds with their own government's policy, have been speaking out and letting the party chips fall where they may.

But perhaps that is the way good MPs ought to be—concerned about what they think is important, and saying, in Parliament where it can be heard and perhaps made to matter, what is on their minds.

And the oddest sight of all is the dismissed Postmaster General Rene Tremblay sitting there, laughing and laughing, when any of his former cabinet colleagues get into parliamentary hot water, as some of them, in this strangely accident-prone ministry do, every anguished day.

History repeats?

But all the storm and strife isn't on the back bench. For the cabinet is having its troubles.

Mines Minister Jean-Luc Pepin is talking of resigning if bilingualism isn't speeded up in the federal civil service.

Citizenship Minister Jean Marchand is saying he is being "ruined" by what he charges is English-dominated Ottawa.

Minister Without Portfolio Maurice Sauve is openly disgruntled that the cabinet is going "so slow" in "accommodating," as it's phrased, Quebec.

But the English-speaking members of the cabinet, and Mr. Sauve, in its French ranks, want Privy Council President Guy Favron encommunicated from the charmed inner circle of power and banished, in political exile, to the bench.

And then there is L'Affaire Lucien Caron with its on-and-off again resignation and all it implies to cabinet and party solidarity.

And the oddest sight of all is the dismissed Postmaster General Rene Tremblay sitting there, laughing and laughing, when any of his former cabinet colleagues get into parliamentary hot water, as some of them, in this strangely accident-prone ministry do, every anguished day.

Decimal System for Britain

How Many Pennies for a Pound?

By PAUL BARREAU
from London

AT LONG last Britain has begun the move to decimalize her currency. The debate on this had been long and the transition period will also be protracted since the preparatory period is not to be completed until 1971.

But the die has now been cast, the decision is irreversible. It was announced by the chancellor of the exchequer, Harold Wilson, in the House of Commons.

Though the chancellor gave the order "forward march" and announced that a decimal currency bill would soon be introduced, the move to decimalize the pound sterling was begun nearly five years ago by the Conservative government of which Mr. Selwyn Lloyd was chancellor. In a statement in the House of Commons he said that the government's view was that real advantage would follow from the adoption of the decimal currency, but that such matters as the cost and the manner of decimalizing should be considered.

In the light of that decision a committee of inquiry on decimal currency was appointed. Its chairman was Lord Halsbury, its report published in September 1963, gave the fullest consideration to all the arguments advanced on this issue, but it was concerned not with the question whether the pound should be decimalized but how this should be done.

One of the major questions to be decided by the committee was whether the unit of currency should remain the pound sterling or whether it should be changed—that is, half of one pound. The argument in favor of retaining the pound rested in the main on the principles of continuity and on the standing and dignity of sterling.

A powerful memorandum from the Bank of England suggested that damage might be done to confidence in sterling if what had until now been made up of 20 shillings were the name given to a unit of only ten shillings.

On the other hand it could be claimed for a ten shilling unit that it would be much more convenient in lending itself to decimalization. It would split up into ten shillings, and into 100 cents which would not be so different in value from a penny as to rule out a "penny" designation of the new coin.

The Halsbury committee recommended that the pound should remain the unit of a decimalized system, though it accepted the contention that from a purely domestic point of view the ten shilling and cent system for the future promised the smoothest transition. This was recommended by a majority of four to two in the committee of six, and the majority view has been accepted by the present government.

Since the committee issued its report the case in favor of decimalization has gained in strength. More countries in the sterling area have moved over to a decimal currency system.

The latest of these is Australia where the transition has recently been made. New Zealand is to follow suit next year. Rhodesia and Eire are studying reports that will ultimately lead them to the same objective.

South Africa had previously decimalized its currency and chose as its new unit the rand, equal to one half of the former South African pound. Aden, Cyprus, the British West Indies, India and Pakistan have over the past 15 years adopted decimal currencies.

From the point of view of trade and ease of payments with the Commonwealth and with most members of the sterling area, the decimalization of the British currency is, therefore, a natural and logical move.

The argument of convenience applies equally to British trade and financial operations with Europe. Whatever may be the shape of Britain's ultimate economic and political links with Western Europe, it seems highly probable that these links will be strengthened and that one day Britain will find itself a member of an expanded European Economic Community.

As such it will derive considerable advantages by reason of the fact that London is—and is likely to remain—the most highly-developed capital market and banking center in Europe.

Preparations for the change will begin at once. The decimal currency bill will set up a decimal currency board whose function it will be to examine in detail with the institutions concerned, and particularly with the banks, the problems involved.

It will be a formidable operation. New coins will have to be minted, business machines adapted and new ones, including perhaps dual purpose machines, manufactured. The cost of this changeover is expected to be about £15 million at current prices, but spread over a number of years.

The government has decided not to compensate those who will have to incur expenditure on the conversion or replacement of machines, except in a very limited number of cases of real hardship. It will, however, allow all such expenditure as a claim against profits before they are subjected to taxation.

The cost would have been increased by every year by which the decision had been delayed. In this age of automation and computerized systems, the interests of the existing system would have grown year by year.

It is right, therefore, that the decision should have been made now.

A Hitler, Al Capone and Castro, finishing it all by saying the premier should be put in a cage. Implying he was crazy.

If I read the reports correctly I think Doris Ashdown will find name calling almost always is begun by the opposition. I think personalities should be banned by the Speaker, from whatever side of the House they came from, but evidently it's not against the rules.

Who'll Phone Gerda?

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin was asked Friday to telephone Gerda Munsinger in Munich and ask her if she wants a judicial inquiry into her alleged security case.

A tense, bawling Commons dissolved into laughter when the suggestion was made by H. W. Herridge (NDF, Kootenay West).

He said Prime Minister Pearson set a precedent for such a call a week ago when he telephoned alleged spy George Victor Spencer in Vancouver and asked him if he wanted an inquiry.

"In view of the precedent," Mr. Herridge asked, tongue-in-cheek, "will the minister of external affairs undertake to phone Frau Gerda and ask her if she would wish an inquiry and come to Canada to testify."

A Quiet Girl—Neighbors

MUNICH (UPI) — Police say a blonde named Gerda Munsinger has been living in Munich since returning to Germany from Canada in 1961.

Police told UPI their records list her as born in 1929 and as a "fashion journalist" by profession.

Neighbors described her as,

She lives alone in a one-room apartment in Munich's famed Schwabing student district, recent scene of Bavaria's most daring artist-and-models-type Fasching festival parties.

Commons 'Sick'

Hugh John Fleming, the former premier of Nova Scotia was moved almost to tears as he indignantly and forcefully defended his honor. It was moving, and very sad.

No amount of debate could pressure Mr. Cardin into naming the men he accused, thus clearing the innocent. The justice minister sat in the Commons all day Friday without saying a word.

More than a score of Liberals, including the Prime Minister, were asked why the government refused to name those involved. Not one gave any reason except "they didn't name names when they smeared us."

So the entire government course is set on the essentially negative reasoning that two wrongs make a right.

How it embarked on that course is not clear. Mr. Cardin claims he was provoked into mentioning the case in the first instance. That certainly doesn't explain Thursday's press conference when he said so much more.

Nor does it explain the rumors spreading around the corridors for the past two or three weeks that the Liberals were about to drop a major scandal.

It doesn't explain why Privy

Council president Guy Favreau discussed the Munsinger case with former Conservative justice minister David Fulton two weeks ago.

Reliable Liberals swear the government did not intentionally plot the events of the past few days. They concede that Mr. Cardin may have.

Members of both sides of the house say Mr. Cardin is willing to sacrifice his own career to destroy Mr. Diefenbaker. Gordon Fairweather (PC-Royal) expressed this feeling in the House.

"What in God's name have we been up to?"

"We have been witnessing a conspiracy enjoyed by a frustrated minister who wishes to commit hari-kari and is willing to take other people with him."

Certainly, Mr. Cardin and his advisor, Mr. Favreau, have called the shots for the past two days. They are dealing from tremendous strength within the party.

When Mr. Cardin tried to resign Tuesday, several Quebec ministers and members said they would go with him. So Mr. Pearson cannot repudiate his justice minister without wrecking the party.

Star's Star Found Banks, Too

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Reguly's discovery of Mrs. Gerda Munsinger in Munich Thursday marked the second time in less than two years that the 35-year-old Toronto Star reporter has turned up people who were in the news but believed to be inaccessible.

Reguly found Mrs. Munsinger, a central figure in a reported sex-and-security case that has Parliament in an uproar, in a Munich apartment. Before he found her alive and well, there were reports she had died of leukemia in East Germany.

ALSO FOUND BANKS

In October, 1964, Reguly found Hal Banks, former boss of the Seafarers International Union, on a yacht in Brooklyn, N.Y. Banks had been missing since July of that year when a bailiff visited his suburban Montreal home in an attempt to serve him with a warrant for committal to jail on a contempt of court sentence.

He turned up Banks two hours after he got to New York. It took him three hours after he arrived in Munich to reach Mrs. Munsinger.

Other Woman Recalled

By CP

Published reports that the Munsinger case now causing furor in Parliament may involve a German woman considered a security risk recall another incident involving a German woman in Canada—the 1954 deportation to Frankfurt of Ursula Schmidt.

Mrs. Schmidt came to Canada from Germany in 1953 and was sent back to face U.S. Air Force charges she had passed on secrets to a Communist spy ring while working for the air force in Frankfurt in West Germany.

In July, 1955, she was sentenced to 17 months on the spying charge. At that time she was 27 or 28.

'Past Paralyzing House'

OTTAWA (CP) — J. Patrick Nowlan (PC — Digby — Annapolis — Kings) Friday urged the government to take steps to get the Commons out of a "morass of name-calling" in the Munsinger case.

The tall, young Nova Scotian said rookie back-benchers like himself are becoming fed up with the way old political battles are paralyzing Parliament.

"The political passions of the past are being used to pollute the present."

Mr. Nowlan said he disagreed with Donald MacEwen (PC—Cape Breton South) about the worth of a speech by Health Minister MacEwen, another Nova Scotian.

LOGICAL APPROACH

He thought Mr. MacEwen had taken a logical and moderate approach in suggesting how the Munsinger case should be dealt with. But Mr. MacEwen had stopped one step short.

He should have asked that Justice Minister Cardin stand up and name the former minister who had been involved in the Munsinger case.

A judicial inquiry alone wasn't enough.

Mobile Command Takes Petawawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The take-over next week of Camp Petawawa near Pembroke, Ont., the joint air training centre at Rivers, Man., and the Calgary garrison by Canadian Forces Mobile Command was announced Friday by defence headquarters.

Mobile command, which has its headquarters in Montreal, is the largest of six functional commands in Canada's new integrated defence organization established last October.

The other commands are maritime, air defence, air transport, materiel and training. Before the reorganization Canada's defence structure was regional.

Once the changeover to the new structure is completed, mo-

WINNIPEG (CP) — Not long before they found the cache in a snowbank, police investigating a $383,000 bullion robbery feared the gold was already on its way out of the country.

"We were pretty worried because we had received information that the gold still was out West but that it would remain in the West for one week after the robbery," St. James Police Chief George Maltby said Friday.

"On March 9 information came through from various sources that convinced us that the gold still was in Winnipeg, however. The criminals did not want to take the gold out on the road until things cooled."

"We knew that if we did not hit the gold within two or three days, it would be too late—that the gold would be gone."

The gold shipment was stolen March 1 minutes after its arrival from Red Lake, Ont. Two men posing as Air Canada ramp crew signed for it and drove away in a stolen truck. Police raids Thursday led to recovery of 11 of the 12 stolen gold bars. Ten were found beneath the snow in a backyard in suburban Fort Rouge and the other in a downtown Portage Avenue office.

LAWYER IN COURT

Harry D. Backlin, 36, a Winnipeg lawyer, appeared in magistrate's court Friday charged with possession of goods obtained by crime.

Backlin was remanded a week in custody. Magistrate Isaac Rice said he would hand down a decision at that time on a request for bail.

Opposing bail, Crown Prosecutor John Enns said police have not finished investigation because the Winnipeg al-port lies within the city of St. James.

"We received a call from one person about another person," Chief Maltby said police were told there was a strong possibility the party named by the tipster was somehow connected with the gold.

"There is no doubt that the information received by the St. James police was correct. It started a sequence of events that led to . . . the recovery of most of the gold."

REWARD SHARE

Asked to comment on who should share in the reward offered of five per cent of the gold's value, the police chief said he will strongly recommend that one of his informants get a big percentage.

"Had it not been for this person who started the sequence of events which led to the eventual discovery of the gold . . . the gold would still be missing."

At Vancouver, RCMP and tracking dogs Friday hunted along the banks of the Fraser River near the international airport for the gold bar still missing.

Now! PERMANENT-PRESS Slacks that NEVER need ironing

... the press is built-in for the life of the garment... wrinkles are built-out

and Combed Cotton

Specially Processed, to Make a BIG Difference!

Wash'em Dry'em Wear'em

on the clothesline, in the automatic dryer, or on a bush.

the crease will stay IN, the wrinkles will fall OUT, washing-after-washing, drying-after-drying and wearing-after-wearing.

Men's Regular Cut

8 95 PAIR

BOYS' 6-12 6 95 13-18 7 95

Judge the Crease-Resistance for Yourself . . .

See these slacks as they look after being through the washer and dryer —untouched by an iron. You'll agree, they look "just pressed," and just right for wearing as they are. Watch for the display in our Men's Shop, when you come in for your slacks.

At last, Permanent-Press means just that - Permanent You've heard about no-iron slacks before — perhaps you've even worn them — and you've probably grown a little dubious about their claims. Now, here at last, are true no-iron slacks. They're different! They're permanently pressed! They're tailored from a specifically processed Terylene and combed cotton fabric that has the press built right in — forever. You can pull them out of the washer — they look smooth. Then simply dry them and wear them, without the touch of an iron, and they stay smooth, hour-after-busy-hour. See them now, at Woodward's, in beige, sage, loden or black.

Bad Precedent—Sportsman

Townsite in Park Would Hit Values

A precedent for the opening of other provincial parks to commercial development will be set if Western Mines is allowed to have a townsite in Strathcona Park, a special legislative committee studying the problem was warned Friday.

Keith Morton of Courtenay, who headed a caravan of up-Island outdoorsmen to Victoria, told the committee that a townsite anywhere within the park boundaries would be detrimental to park values.

Edward Mankelov of Chemainus, another member of the delegation, pointed out that the Western Mines problem is a test case which will greatly influence similar decisions which may have to be made in the future.

Contract Won By Local Firm

Construction on a $157,000 addition to the B.C. Hydro's Garbally Road garage will begin immediately, a Hydro spokesman said Friday.

Victoria contractors M. P. Paine Co. have been awarded the contract for the 10,000-square foot addition.

The contract covers alterations to the existing garage as well as the addition to be built on the Douglas Street side, the spokesman said.

The one-story clear-span building will have overhead electric infra-red heating. Wade, Stockhill Armour and Partners are architects for the addition, which will be concrete blocks with steel joists, the spokesman said.

The new building, to be completed by mid-August, will allow centralization of B.C. Hydro transportation department garage operations in Victoria.

Money to Pay Fine Object of Break-In

Thomas Scarr needed $250 to pay a traffic fine. So he shouldered open the door at Dennis Shell Fish Co. Ltd. Thursday night looking for cash.

But all he got was a night in the police cells.

The 23-year-old Scarr, also known as Thomas Ashe, pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court Friday to breaking into the premises at 405 Yates and attempted theft.

REMANDED

Scarr, 543 Joffre, was remanded to March 18 for a pre-sentence report.

Det.-Constable Murray MacArthur said Scarr was found in a shed about 50 feet behind the store.

He said Scarr told him he was looking for $250 with which to pay a traffic fine.

The husband of a woman who pleaded guilty to forging a $3,800 cheque two years ago acted disgracefully and beyond contempt, Magistrate William Ostlen said.

He sentenced Edna Marie Petrat, 24, 1705 Cook, to six months in jail for the offence.

The magistrate said he believed Mrs. Petrat's husband, who now lives apart from her, pressured her into buying the new car "in a subtle and delicate way."

POSITION OF TRUST

Magistrate Ostler told Mrs. Petrat: "You were in a position of trust, you knew your position and you violated it."

Court was told last week that Mrs. Petrat was an employee of Montreal Trust and she forged a client's signature on a cheque.

She had the cheque certified at the Government Street branch of the Royal Bank of Canada and cashed it at the Bank of Montreal, Douglas Street branch.

She used the money to buy a 1964 car which was then registered in her husband's name, court was told last week.

Gordon Leigh Truscott was sentenced to eight months in jail for two counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Truscott, 124 Fort, had pleaded guilty to the charge last month when court was told how two girls, one semi-naked, were found in his apartment Feb. 24.

Truscott admitted then to giving the girls sleeping pills.

Sixteen-year-old Ronald McWilliams, awaiting sentence on a charge of possession of housebreaking tools, was charged with four counts of auto theft.

He was remanded to Monday when he is due to be sentenced on the other charge — for plea.

Two brothers who had been asked to leave the Army-Navy club at 1001 Ward at 5:25 p.m. Thursday returned two hours later.

Pact Ends Reactor Strike

PINAWA, Man. (CP) — Settlement has been announced of a strike of 23 reactor operators at the Whiteshell nuclear research establishment here.

The walkout began Feb. 16. The reactor was shut down before the strike began at this Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. establishment 63 miles northeast of Winnipeg. Operators are members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC).

Court Parade

This time they were refused admission and they argued with two waiters. The police came and the brothers were arrested for creating a disturbance by being drunk.

Russell Lawrence McLaughlin, 1270 Bay, and George Michael McLaughlin, 217 Beechwood, pleaded guilty and were each fined $50.

Magistrate Ostler: "It is nice to see brothers doing things together but not of this type."

Thomas James Barton, HMCS Sussexvale, stole $1 worth of gas from a car parked on Signal Hill Thursday night.

He pleaded guilty to theft under $50 and was remanded to March 18 for a pre-sentence report.

Rene Pelletier didn't wait around when on bail in Saskatoon in July, 1964, while awaiting trial for eight offences.

He came to British Columbia and was jailed in Burnaby in May of last year for 12 months on four charges of false pretences.

Now a prisoner at Wilkinson Road, Pelletier pleaded guilty to the Saskatoon offences and was jailed for four months.

Harry Hage, 19, had been driving on and off for two years without a licence, he told the court.

Hagen, 615 Seaford, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and driving without a licence. He was fined $350 on the first charge and $50 on the second. His licence was suspended for six months. He was arrested Thursday night after some erratic driving in Saanich.

Door Opens to History

Through this portal since 1888 have come generations of Anglican adherents of Cedar Hill Road and Cedar Hill Cross Road area to worship at St. Luke's Church. Parish was originally founded in 1860 by Bishop Hills. Present rector is The Venerable C. E. F. Wolff, who came to parish three years ago from Edmonton, where he was archdeacon of diocese. Today St. Luke's serves 1,700 adults and children; extensions to accommodate date growing membership were made to church in 1942 and 1952. (J. T. Jones)

'Enter... You Gave Me Food'

Agricultural Missionaries Take Parable Seriously

UPI

In his vivid parable of the last judgement, Jesus pictures the King of Heaven sitting on a throne with all mankind arrayed before him, the righteous on his right and the wicked on his left. The King speaks to those on his right, "Come, enter, and possess the kingdom. For when I was hungry, you gave me food."

Surprised, the righteous ask, "Lord, when was it that we saw you hungry and fed you?"

ALL FOR ONE.

"Anything you did for one of my brothers here, however humble, you did for me."

No one takes this parable more seriously than the small band of dedicated Christians who are serving the people of undeveloped countries as agricultural missionaries.

HALF CENTURY

More than 50 years before the western governments began sending technical aid missions abroad, agricultural missionaries were at work in the backwoods villages of Asia, Africa and Latin America. With practically no resources except their knowledge and their bare hands, they helped to dig wells, build compost heaps, plant seedbeds, check erosion. They showed farmers how to increase the yield of each precious plot of land by using better seeds and fertilizers.

COPEL WITH PLAGUES

They introduced protein-rich crops such as peanuts and soybeans. They learned how to cope with the plagues which periodically wiped out the chicken flocks.

They organized credit unions to deliver farmers from the clutches of usurious moneylenders who charged them up to 200 per cent interest on loans. They founded marketing co-operatives. They taught the village women how to use local products — such as straw — to make handicrafts that could be sold in the cities.

EFFORTS HEROK

The heroic efforts of the agricultural missionaries — and some of the miracles they've achieved in raising living standards among the poorest people on earth — are recounted in a new book called Crossroads Against Hunger (Harper & Row) by I. W. Moomaw, an Ohio farmer who went to India in 1925 as an agricultural missionary for the Church of the Brethren. In recent years, he has kept in close touch with agricultural missionaries in all parts of the world as a field representative of the interdenominational agency, Agricultural Missions Inc.

Moomaw doesn't dwell on the hardships of the work. He is absorbed with the results — the well-nigh incredible transformations that take place when modern farming technology begins to lift people from the brink of starvation and introduce them to a new life of hope and human dignity.

WATCHED STARVATION

But at the end of the book, he speaks out with the long-suppressed bitterness of a man who has seen too many babies starve. "At present, the churches have 320 agricultural and home economics workers in service abroad," he says. "They make up only 3 per cent of the total number of American protestant missionaries sent abroad."

"Today, the protestant churches are giving in support of this work an average of 10 cents per member per year. This represents little more than the crumbs that fall from our tables."

DOES SO MUCH

"There is no situation in which a small investment can do so much to relieve human suffering. Why are we doing so little? Why this feeble response when the church is confronted by the greatest opportunity of the century? Does this represent the heart of the American people?"

In the parable of the last judgement, the King turns to the people on his left, and tells them they're not for the Kingdom of Heaven because "when I was hungry you gave me nothing to eat."

They also are surprised, and ask when this happened. And the King answers: "Anything you did not do for one of these humble ones, you did not do for me."

Pandas Meet For 'Wedding'

MOSCOW (AP) — Chi-Chi, the only female giant panda in captivity west of China, arrived by plane from London to get "married." The bridegroom-to-be is An-An, the only male of the species outside China. There are 18 giant pandas in Peking and two more in zoos in North Korea.

New Moderator For Victoria

Newly elected moderator of Victoria presbytery, Presbyterian Church in Canada, is Rev. Alan M. Beaton, minister at Knox Presbyterian, 2964 Richmond. Mr. Beaton was minister at Knox Presbyterian in Sooke until coming to Victoria pastorate in January this year. — (William A. Boucher.)

Birney Leaves Post at UBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Earle Birney, poet-in-residence at the University of Toronto for the past year, has officially resigned from his post as professor of creative writing at University of B.C.

Herbie Finds His Match

Herbie II overdid it Thursday and picked on somebody his own size. The 10-month-old seal at the Oak Bay Undersea Gardens broke through a gap in the wire mesh of his pen and into the main fish tank where he nipped the tail of a pregnant halibut.

The halibut — an easy match for Herbie's 40 pounds — turned and bit him on the nose.

Vote Sought On Fluoridation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver alderman Ernie Broome said Friday he will ask the provincial government to accept a vote of all taxpayers in the Greater Vancouver area on the question of fluoridation of the regional water system.

Congregation Voting On Death Penalty

In City Churches

The congregation of Centennial United Church will vote on the question of the abolition of the death penalty at the 7:30 p.m. service this Sunday.

Besides preaching on the subject, Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons will invite questions from those in attendance before the vote is taken.

Dr. Parsons is chairman of the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church and president of the Victoria Council of Churches.

The church leader feels public discussion of the question is particularly pertinent now as the issue is scheduled to be debated and voted on soon in the House of Commons.

High school students will take over the services at 9:30 and 11 a.m. in the Unitarian Church.

The purpose of youth week, said Unitarian minister Marvin Evans, is to let the membership get a first-hand view "of how our young people see themselves and us."

Featured at the service will be a folk duo and a series of

This is the film shown recently on the CBC-TV Heritage series.

Visiting minister Rev. Joe Gallop, a worker with Christian youth in the province, will be preacher this Sunday at Parkdale Evangelical Free Church and will conduct children's rallies at the church each evening at 7 p.m. Tuesday through Friday of next week.

A series of films on the Holy Land, taken by Dr. Reuben Matiko of Victoria, will start at 7:30 p.m. today at the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, Pandora and Vancouver.

The film to be shown tonight by Dr. Matiko will be on his journey from Cairo to Mount Sinai.

Dr. Matiko and the church extend an invitation to the general public to attend.

Another church is featuring a film tonight. At the Alliance Church, 1039 Yates, the new 70-minute teen-age film called "Without Onion" will be premiered at 8 p.m.

The Moral Re-Armament film "Mr. Brown Comes Down the Hill" will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday at Belmont Avenue United Church, Belmont at Pembroke.

Many Voices to Ring At Choir Festival

The fifth annual festival of junior choirs and student organists will be held at 7:30 p.m. next Friday with 200 voices of 13 choirs entertaining in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Among seven junior organists participating will be Bill Dymon, best known as a solo treble singer.

The combined choirs, conducted by David Palmer, will sing "Fair Lord Jesus and, with delect, At the Name of Jesus."

General co-ordinator and organist for the festival, sponsored by the Victoria Centre of the Royal Canadian College of Organists, is Geoffrey Thornburn.

The concert is open to the public.

'New Theology' Actually Century Old

HALIFAX (CP) — Anglican theologian Prof. Ronald Reeve says the "new theology" that has upset many Christians is anything but new.

North Back As Head Of Bureau

Re-elected president of the Victoria Visitors Bureau at a directors meeting at City Hall Friday was G. Nicholas North. S. M. Booker was elected vice-president and Ald. Clyde Savage, treasurer.

Appointed to the executive committee were directors Sam Lane and Stan Mooney.

Conway Parrott felt that the base of the electoral set-up for the bureau should be broadened and suggested that a new president be elected every year. A special directors' meeting will be called to consider the whole subject.

Prof. Reeve, who teaches dogmatic and moral theology at the University of King's College here, says many elements in today's radical theological movements can be traced back at least 100 years.

He defends the work of Dr. John Robinson, the Anglican bishop of Woolwich, England, who wrote the best-selling Honest to God and the American theologians involved in the so-called "God is Dead" movement.

These people are not trying to destroy faith, he says, but "are just as concerned as we are to get men to follow Jesus into life."

His value is in "shaking the clergy and laity out of their lethargy" and showing that Christianity is being harmed by "many Christians who are proclaiming a very juvenile concept of the Christian faith, couched in antique and irrelevant symbols, to an extremely intelligent world full of people more highly educated than ever before."

Church People Who Drink: Is It a Sin?

Saint John gave offence by being a teetotaler and our Lord gave offence by drinking, said Rev. Roy A. Hoult in the Christ Church Cathedral April newsletter. In commenting on the morality of church people consuming liquor.

Mr. Hoult was replying to a query in the Question Box feature which appears from time to time in the Cathedral publication.

The query was: "I know I should have a bad conscience if I drink liquor, yet I see that a great many of my fellow churchpeople do. Ought I to try to change my views?"

"It would be impossible for a churchman to condemn the drinking of wine altogether without condemning our Lord himself," answered Mr. Hoult.

He said that our Lord would have used wine throughout his life as he certainly did when at the Last Supper he instituted the Eucharist.

"But this does not mean that a churchman can or should approve any and every drinking of alcohol," pointed out the clergyman.

"Drunkenness is sinful. It harms both the drunkard himself and those around him."

"The real question is where to draw the line."

Mr. Hoult said a person is not the better for drinking, just as he is not the better for abstaining.

"It is a matter for your own discretion what you choose to do. It would be foolish in the extreme to suppose that you ought to drink."

Mr. Hoult said that both drinkers and non-drinkers should be on guard against flaunting their own particular habits "in such a way as to hurt one's fellow-Christians."

"And those who rather regret the drinking habits of their Christian friends should note this."

Fun Day Sunday 'Undermining' South Africans

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—Swimming, dancing, fishing and ice cream are among a host of Sunday pastimes which, according to some elders of the Dutch Reformed Church, are undermining South Africa's church-goers.

With more than 1,400,000 white worshippers, the largest religious following in the country, the Dutch Reformed Church deplores women's trousers, revealing skirts, shorts, ballet tights and bikinis. All are obstacles to moral purity, especially on Sunday, claim the churchmen.

Even Santa Claus is labelled "a derisive heathen impersonation," by Rev. G. J. Korte, who wants the genial character banned. "People no longer please Christ but the devil," he asserts.

Parson J. J. Viljoen, staunch opponent of the bikini, believes there is a lot to be said for apartheid of the sexes when it comes to mixed bathing.

Among a growing list of "never on Sunday" bannings suggested by the church are cocktail parties, newspaper, dancing, popular music, card games and sports.

Unless you are a hotel resident you cannot buy a beer on Sunday. But most South Africans keep a well-stocked bar at home for Sunday entertaining.

Movies are closed on Sundays, but a moment after midnight swarms of teenagers line up for the late-night show—a relief from Sunday boredom.

In cosmopolitan Johannesburg, teen-age movie-goers wear shorts and jeans and expose midriffs. But not in Bloemfontein, where short skirts are banned.

Johannesburg almost is a deserted city on Sunday. Home parties are the order of the day. People frolic around their private swimming pools and consume as much liquor as they wish.

Even South Africa's farmers come under the church's eye. Caught in the grip of a serious drought, they were warned by the church not to use rain-making rockets, especially on Sunday.

"Such modern methods of inducing rain are evil," said P. S. Coetzee, moderator of the Orange Free State Dutch Reformed Church. "People should look to the church for their salvation and pray for rain."

Not all South Africans towne abide by the "no fun on Sunday laws." The resort city of Durban is crowded with sun-bronzed, bikini-clad lovelies and transistor radios blare.

Sportmen in Natal spend Sunday fishing along the seashore and inland, but not in neighboring Orange Free State. Sunday fishing is banned by law there and fines are imposed on offenders.

Mainly aimed at South Africa's carefree youth, some towns have banned ice cream vendors, sexy cinema posters and curvaceous shop window models in an effort to pressure more people into the church on Sunday.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

Pierre Burton brought the church and the world into dialogue. He has also disclosed prevailing ignorance regarding the Christian faith. The Restless Church is a symposium in which protagonists of the church and Bertonian critics confront one another.

Eugene Fairweather contributes a magnificent statement in The Catholic Tradition. He points out that Christian dogma does not mean faith in a three-layer universe, "the concept of a white-bearded Big Daddy perched on a cloud," or that a few thousand years ago the world was created in six days.

"In reality the historic Christian faith has to do with none of these things—at least as they are presented by Berton. Faith and dogma are about God the Creator and the dependence of the world on His creative will—not about the shape of the universe or the process of its evolution. Faith and dogma are about God's acts and words in human history, culminating in the story of Jesus Christ—not

No Observer's Balcony

Sincere men do not speak from outside the battle, from an observer's balcony. They make an honest effort to understand the worship they deride and the history of the faith they attack. Berton speaks of the Church coming to adulthood. Has he read Dying We Live? He should be aware of the testimony of Einstein—an agnostic and one-time critic—who tells how the Church alone dared to champion the cause of the Jews in Nazi Germany when press, intelligentsia, and universities let them down, so that Einstein testified, "What I once despised, I now praise unreservedly."

Berton and his fellow-critics should know that the bravest listed by McClelland and testimony against war and

Church Play Startling But Message Potent

For Heaven's Sake, a satirical Broadway-style revue, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Monday, March 21, in McPherson Playhouse by the Heritage Players of Northwest Christian College, Eugene, Ore.

"Without doubt, this play will become the most discussed local church event of 1966," said Rob Nelson, Christian Education director of First United.

"Too often we who are in the church have insulated upon 'safe plays about good people,'" said Mr. Nelson who supports the "modern, startling" terms in which For Heaven's Sake presents its theological message.

One of the numbers in the show is called Gimme God Blues which is followed by a dance called Aim for Heaven.

"For Heaven's Sake's deeply religious significance is conveyed through secular experience," explains Ronald Coulter, the director.

The Heritage Players will also present an evening of singing and acting at 8 p.m. Saturday.

A program for all college-age young people will be presented by the Heritage Players at 8 p.m. March 20 in Room 206 of the church education building. This program will include scenes from For Heaven's Sake.

This Christian revue deals in song, skits and dances with such themes as the church in today's society, boy-girl relationships, the meaning of the incarnation, and the part an individual should play in the mission of the church.

No charge is being made for the workshops at the church. The charge for the March 21 show at McPherson Playhouse is $1.25 for adults and $1 for students.

March 19 in First United Church hall. This evening is planned for high school students in the city.

On Sunday, March 20 from 2:30 to 5 p.m. the company will be in charge of an adult drama workshop for all interested in the subject of church drama. This program will take place in Room 206 of First United's Christian Education building.

Baptism Topic Of Talks

The subject of baptism with guest speaker Rev. John Watson of First Baptist will be the topic next Sunday, Monday and Wednesday for the Inter-Church Discussion meetings being held at St. David's Anglican, 3182 Cordova Bay Road.

Two young men from the Blues X-5, Ed Wright and John Fisher, will provide inter-agency stimulation with several songs with guitar at the 7:30 p.m. Sunday session.

Monday's meet is at 7:45 p.m. and Wednesday's at 10 a.m.

General chairman, Rev. H. Gordon Walker, welcomes other interested members of the public — of any church or no church — to join the regulars in the New Look at Worship weekly meetings.

Little Chance Indicated For UN Bid

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—United Nations Secretary-General U Thant circulated an official UN document, a request from East Germany that its application for UN membership be considered at the next meeting of the Security Council.

The application is expected to be opposed by the United States, Britain and France, which consider East Germany to be an occupied zone and not a state. The consensus here is that there is virtually no chance for East Germany to get its request on the council agenda.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Joe H. Hildebrand, Professor of Chemistry-Emeritus at the University of California at Berkeley and the author of several text books on chemistry, will lecture on chemical solutions at Simon Fraser University Tuesday.

Monitor Editor To Speak

A talk in Vancouver by Erwin D. Canham, editor-in-chief of The Christian Science Monitor, will be carried by direct transmission into First Church of Christ, Scientist, 1205 Pandora, at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The general public is invited. Mr. Canham is on a worldwide public speaking tour in celebration of the 100th anniversary of Christian Science. His talk, from the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, is entitled The Spiritual Revolution.

He will be introduced by Dr. Hugh L. Keenleyside.

HEADED NEWSPAPERS

Mr. Canham is an alternate American delegate to the United Nations General Assembly. He is a past president of both the American Society of Newspaper Editors and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

In 1964 Mr. Canham was appointed an honorary commander of the most excellent order of the British Empire (CBE) by Queen Elizabeth II.

His talk next Thursday is intended to further the "broadening communication among religions and also between religion and science."

Europe Trip Planned

A bilingual, interdenominational 32-day ecumenical trip to Europe is being organized by the Ecumenical Centre, 1444 Drummond Street, Montreal.

Participants will visit ecumenical centres and speak to experts in the subject from May 6 to June 8 with visits to England, France, Switzerland and Italy.

The principal organizers of the trip are Rev. Paul Busing, Anglican; Rev. Claude de Mestral, United; and Rev. Irene Beaubien, Roman Catholic.

Monitor Editor To Speak

Before departure, travellers will be brought up to date on ecumenical activities in Canada. In particular they will be briefed on the Expo 67 Christian Pavilion project. The purpose of these briefings is so that each member can be a spokesman in Europe on ecumenism in Canada.

Further information on the trip can be obtained by writing the Montreal Ecumenical Centre.

So Long, Sunny Jim

James E. (Sunny Jim) Fitzsimmons, 91, who devoted 75 years to riding and training thoroughbreds, died Friday in Miami. He saddled two Triple Crown winners, Gallant Fox in 1930 and Omaha in 1935.

You're on Stage Tonight

Chin Up, Willie Weiler!

Willie Weiler, Pan-American Games all-round gymnastics champion in 1963, seems to bar out the grand old adage that a family that chins together, grins together.

Weiler, a sergeant in the Canadian army, also holds the Canadian championship, and he'll be in Victoria today to compete in the University of Victoria's second annual gymnastics meet.

And coming with Weiler from B.C.'s Vedder Crossing army camp is Mrs. Weiler. She will act as one of the 13 judges in the competition — but not in her husband's event.

Meet organizer Andrew Wade emphasizes that all competition is senior. "There is no novice stuff," Wade says.

Among the 30 competitors is Seattle's Joyce Tanac who, two years ago at 14, won the B.C. senior woman's championship. She was a member of the U.S. women's team at the "little Olympics" in Mexico City last October.

The university will be represented by Jon Silber-nagel, a specialist on the high bar and parallel horse, and Alice Taggart, whose best event is the balance beam.

Victoria YMCA has also entered a team led by Gordie Gannon, a seventh ranked Canadian and a contender for the 1968 Olympic team. Steve Chatton, a Californian living in Victoria, has competed in the Los Angeles city and Muscle Beach championships. Chatton will also line up with the YMCA.

Other competitors will come from Alberta, Washington, and B.C.

Tournament begins at 7 a.m. The feature event, the high bar on which Weiler excels, begins about 9:15 at the university's Gordon Head gymnasium.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Pontiac Parisienne Sport Coupe

...then you don't have far to go!
It's as near as your Pontiac dealer's!

Pontiac's beauty wins a lot of friends. You can tell that just by looking at it. But should you wish to find out what Pontiac's new brand of performance can do for you, you really have to drive the car. Before you do, let us tell you one thing: Once you've pulled away from the curb in a new Pontiac, be prepared to smile. You're pointed toward excitement. Acceleration is quick... very quick. Freeway cruising is smooth and quiet. And on the roughest, twistiest roads you can find, you'll be surprised that a car with so luxurious a big-car ride can be so agile. Before we forget the practical side of Pontiac, let's remember that each one of its 54 handsome models is a full-sized family car priced just right for the performance-lover with a budget to keep. Sound like we consider Pontiac the perfect car for you? We do. Visit your Pontiac dealer today and discover why. He is listed below. The Success Car has done it again.

Physical Fitness Director

Says:

There are not many 95 pound weaklings left. Most Canadians suffer from the opposite, too many push-button and conveniences — most of the physical weaknesses come from the overly lubbered, the puffed and the flabby, who seldom do more exercise than drive the car around the block.

Yet it's not hard to get back in good physical condition; all it takes is desire and a little will power. Palm Springs and European Health Club lets you enjoy your road back to fitness in luxurious surroundings—with only the latest and most modern methods—also year 'round swimming in a heated pool, and such relaxing pleasures as Hot Mineral Sulfurpool, Finnish Sauna Baths, Ultra Violet Sun Room, Steam Baths, and many other facilities.

WASHINGTON (AP) — from a distance," Lt. Gen. William W. Dick Jr. told the Senate armed services and appropriations committees. Many innovations are being used in the Vietnam conflict as he urged approval of more than $1,500,000,000 in the new fiscal year for these purposes. Among them were:

● A mobile military field hospital, equipped with electric lights, x-ray facilities, an inflatable hospital ward and air condition.

● A folding steel net landing made for helicopters which can be dropped on top of trees or jungle growth in eight minutes.

● A coated nylon membrane for airfields to cover the soft wet runways during rainy seasons or halt severe dust during dry seasons.

● Lightweight armor "protection for both ground troops and crew members of army aircraft" to protect them from enemy bomb fragments and other hazards.

● An electrically-operated grenade launcher which can toss as many as 240 of the missiles in a minute for distances up to 1,200 metres (3,337 feet).

● A new lightweight meal kit, weighing 10 ounces, for long patrols.

Saigon Tension Grows After General Ousted

SAIGON (LAT) — The Viet Nam government Friday imposed censorship on domestic newspapers about the removal of fiery Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi from his position as military and civilian commander of the Buddhist-dominated northern provinces of South Viet Nam.

A brief, official announcement said only that Thi asked for a leave "for health reasons" and that it has been granted by the national directory, the military junta that rules with Air Vice Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky as prime minister.

Although Thi appeared to have submitted to the decision, the tension continued in Saigon and in the northern cities of Da Nang and Hue.

Three battalions of Vietnamese marines, about 1,500 men, were brought into Saigon on alert status and units of the Vietnamese 25th Division were in strategic positions around Saigon to block any possible coup attempts by friends of Thi.

The prime minister and ruling generals apparently felt that the peaceful demonstrations in Da Nang, where 2,000 pro-Thi civilians and off-duty paratroopers marched with signs, warranted taking expanded security precautions.

Into this former command, on an acting capacity, went Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Chuan, whose 1st Division is in Hue and whose loyalty to the central government is apparently unquestioned, although he is a Buddhist and a native of Hue.

WAMORI Ky moved against his long-time rival for power by accusing him, before fellow members of the national directory, of conducting his administration of the northern corps area "like a warlord," ignoring or defying instructions from the central government.

The vote to depose Thi reportedly was 80. The three other corps commanders voted with Ky, in effect concurring that Corps commanders are completely subservient to the

'Suicidal Waves' Hit Camp

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Marine helicopters flying into the Communist-dominated jungles near the Laotian border Friday rescued five downed Marine airmen and 34 Vietnamese tribesmen who survived the massive Communist assault camp.

An American survivor said the North Vietnamese attacked in suicidal human waves during the struggle for the camp, route from North Viet Nam through Laos into South Viet Nam.

A U.S. military spokesman said the Americans and Vietnamese defenders of the camp three miles from Laos suffered "heavy" casualties during the two day onslaught by 5,000 North Vietnamese regular troops.

He said the Communists also paid a heavy price before over-running the camp. Thursday. He estimated at least 500 Communist troops were killed.

"They (the defenders) stacked up Communist bodies like cordwood on the wire perimeter," the spokesman said.

Only five of about 20 U.S. "Green Beret" special forces men were known to have survived. All were wounded. Of the estimated 360 Montagnard tribesmen and Nung mountaineers of Chinese descent in the camp, 35 miles west of Da Nang, about 120 were brought out.

RESCUES Helicopters flew out 69 defenders Wednesday and Thursday. Several downed fliers were picked up Thursday in daring aerial rescues.

Friday's rescue mission was carried out by Marine search-and-rescue helicopters who flew toward the muzzles of the Communist guns, which had knocked down three helicopters, a Skyraider and a C-47 "Puff the Magic Dragon" sunship.

They picked up five Marine crew members who had been believed killed in the crash of two helicopters Thursday and 54 Montagnards and Nungs, including three women, who had hidden from the Communists.

Mine Strife Costs Lives

SANTIAGO, Chile (Reuters) — Four strikers were killed and 25 injured Friday when armed workers clashed with police and soldiers at the strike-hit northern El Salvador copper mine.

Fighting raged for 30 minutes and two policemen were seriously wounded, a statement by Defense Minister Juan de Dios Carrasco said.

Spending Cut

VANCOUVER (CP) — Aldermen attacked estimates for the first year of a tight five-year capital spending program Thursday and reduced proposed spending by $4,100,000.

House Group Keeps U.S. War Bill Intact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every cent of President Johnson's emergency request for $12.1 billion to fight the war in Viet Nam was approved unanimously Friday by the House appropriations committee. Chairman George H. Mahon (D, Tex.) said more funds might be needed within a few months.

Tennis courts at Beacon Hill Park and Bullen Park in Esquimalt will be open to youngsters between 11 and 18 again this summer. Free instruction is to be co-ordinated by Gordon Hartley, physical education instructor at Victoria High School, for the city public courts tennis program.

Courts at Beacon Hill Park will be open Monday through Friday between 1:30 and 5:30 p.m., beginning July 4.

Courts at Bullen Park will be open on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays between 9 a.m. and noon, also starting July 4.

A gorilla will be prowling Victoria's downtown streets this afternoon.

The king-sized monkey will be advertising the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League's Showtime '66, to be held at the McPherson Playhouse March 15 to 19.

"Cougars have been on the streets of Victoria, so we thought we would go over," a league spokesman said.

Wearer of the gorilla costume is a member of the cast of more than 100 entertainers who will take part in the variety show, she said.

CHEMUNU — Five-and-a-half-year old Johnny Sylvester, son of Westholme residents Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Sylvester, was taken to Chemunnu Hospital with a slight concussion after he was struck by a car on the Old Island Highway between Pison's bar and Mount Richer Road. His injuries are not known.

Police said driver of the car was Mrs. Dorothy Sampson of Duncan. The boy's condition was listed as "fairly good."

Dying Girl in Nanaimo Raped by Two Men, Boys

By PETER TAYLOR
NANAIMO — A coroner's jury investigating the death of 19-year-old Lavina Henry, of Alton Bay, who was found dead in a Nanaimo district home Feb. 19, Friday recommended action against two Nanaimo men and two juveniles.

The jury found Miss Henry had died of fulminating pneumonia and said she had been raped by four people while she was in an unconscious condition. The verdict went on to say, "the tragedy of the death was needless and could have been prevented if proper medical care had been administered even to the last."

The jury recommended further action be taken against Norman John, Leslie John and two juveniles, all of Cedar, for their part "in the aforesaid intercourse without consent with the deceased."

Pathologist Dr. S. M. Grant admitted the girl would lapse in and out of a coma prior to her death.

He said she had a zero blood-alcohol reading.

HOSPITAL
The jury was told Lavina came to Nanaimo for treatment at the Nanaimo Indian Hospital and on Feb. 3 she was well enough to be released. Work was found for her at a local rest home for elderly people.

By Feb. 17, she was staying with Mrs. Sandy Bob on the No. 1 Reserve and even at this time

Preston to take charge of the destroyer-escort's engineering department.

J. W. Green, 47, a native of Victoria, has been appointed executive director of the air transport board.

Mr. Green worked with the Public Utilities Commission of B.C. before joining the board in 1956.

Now living in Manotick, Ont., he replaces J. R. Belcher of Ottawa, who was named board vice-chairman last year.

Personnel of the Pacific Maritime Command have been invited to participate in a sailing regatta at Elk Lake March 27 in connection with the Saanich Diamond Jubilee celebrations.

Air Vice-Marshal F. R. Sharp, commander of training command will inspect a full-dress parade of cadets at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, at 10 a.m. Sunday.

He will address the cadets and later he and Mrs. Sharp will join the staff and cadets for church services on the quarterdeck.

Answers to questions on progress of the Royal Canadian Navy's hydrofoil program will be provided by two members of the project personnel on March 25.

Commanders T. S. Allan and C. R. Cotaris will speak at the Fleet School at HMCS Naden in the morning and again in the afternoon.

Their presentation will include slide and film briefs on progress of construction and its fighting equipment.

All ships in the command have been asked to send representatives to the briefing.

News of happenings on All Sooke Day this year can be found on Victoria on toll-free phone.

The B.C. Telephone Company announced Friday that equipment to be installed in the Sooke, Belmont, Colquitz and Victoria exchanges has been ordered and will arrive in Victoria this month.

The system will go into service on All Sooke Day.

Cost of providing free calling will be approximately $260,000. Under a plan known as extended area service, charges will be eliminated on calls to and from Victoria.

Outside the Queen's Hotel, she asked Norman John to escort her inside but the bartender refused to serve them. Norman John went home to change and Lavina was left with his brother Leslie.

RESERVE
About 11:30 p.m., the jury was told, Leslie John, Norman John, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford White and two other friends of the White's, came out of the Patricia Hotel.

After dropping his wife off at their friends' house, Mr. White drove the Johns and Lavina out to a house on the No. 2 Reserve at Cedar.

During the drive Lavina didn't say a word and had to be helped into the house, the court was told.

DRUNK
The Johns were joined by a 17-year-old youth. He admitted he was drunk. Norman John testified he was "high" and Leslie John said he was "the highest of the three." There also in the house was a 13-year-old boy.

Saanich Girl Killed In Northern Crash

By TONY DILLON-DAVIS

A young Saanich girl, teaching at Stewart, B.C., was among six persons killed in the crash of a small amphibious aircraft 60 miles north of Prince Rupert Thursday.

Marjorie E. J. Daubeny, 28, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Daubeny, 1103 Glenora, and her friend George Boyes, 25, of North Vancouver, decided at the last minute to attend a teachers' convention in Prince Rupert.

TO CONVENTION
The two elementary school teachers at Stewart, paid their own way to the convention and boarded a Pacific Western Airlines Grumman Goose aircraft at Stewart, at 4 p.m. Thursday.

At 4:40 p.m. the pilot, Roy Berryman of Prince Rupert, radioed that he was encountering snow and was attempting to land on the water to wait out the storm.

PORTLAND CANAL
The aircraft crashed into the shore of the Portland Canal at Maple Bay, about 35 miles south of Stewart.

Only survivor was Mr. Berryman, who suffered face cuts and bruises, but no serious injury.

Dead are: Miss Daubeny, Miss Boyes, Mrs. John Heccomovic, about 27, of Stewart, and her children Beth Marie, 5, and Susan Eileen, 2, and Mark Nooski, 25, of Fort Fraser, B.C.

A party of PWA officials from Vancouver are investigating cause of the crash.

Born in Nanaimo, Miss Daubeny attended Cloverdale Elementary School, and Mount View High School.

She qualified as an elementary school teacher at the University of Victoria, and got her first job at a school in White Rock.

AT PORT ALBERT
She taught at Port Albert's Beaver Creek Elementary School for two years before going to the mainland to work at Canyon Heights Elementary School in North Vancouver in September, 1964.

In North Vancouver she met fellow teacher George Boyes.

TO SEE NORTH
"Last summer she said she would like to see a bit of the north. She applied for this job at Stewart, and that's when it all started," her father said Friday in Saanich.

More Production Needed

OTTAWA (CP)—Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky said in his annual report released Friday the economy is running the risk of overloading and greater productivity is needed.

The report, dated Feb. 28 and covering the year 1965, said the principal objective of policy should not be to increase demand for products and services, but to improve output in order to meet the demand without discouraging its normal growth.

Mr. Rasminsky also said improved productivity is important in Canada's international situation. This country can't depend automatically on a flow of foreign investment funds, but must demonstrate its ability to compete effectively both at home and abroad with foreign producers.

CYCLE CONTINUES
The report traced the economic and monetary development of 1965—the growth in national output and reduction in unemployment, the scare thrown into financial markets by failure of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. and the rise in money supply and interest rates.

Mr. Rasminsky said virtually all the slack in the economy was taken up by the end of 1965, the fifth year of an unusually long expansionary cycle.

"Fortunately the productive capacity of the economy is growing and can be expected to continue to grow at a substantial rate. The main sources of growth are the rapid increase in the labor force and the prospective improvement in productivity associated in part with recent high levels of investment in plant and equipment.

CAPACITY
"Public policy should continue to aim at providing conditions, including an adequate level of total demand, which encourage the economy to expand in accordance with the increase in its effective capacity.

"But in the immediate future our capacity to grow depends essentially on the factors just mentioned, namely the prospective increases in the labor force and in productivity, and can no longer be augmented quickly by any significant reduction in the amount of slack in the economy."

The gross national product-total value of all goods and

School Artwork Tasty But Mice There First

Detroit (AP) — The latest trend appears to be toward edible art.

First there were the amateur artists in New York last week who painted with peanut butter and ate the results.

Now comes a group of suburban Detroit school children who create masterpieces with macaroni, beans, lentils, sugar cubes, vitamin pills and coffee grounds.

Only they haven't eaten their masterpieces. The mice got there first.

Harold Smart, 39, an art teacher at Brookside school, a private elementary school, said some of the youngsters' earlier efforts were mutilated by mice while stored in the building.

"We got some mousetraps and started over," Smart said.

The idea, the teacher says, is to show the 7-to-11-year-olds in the classes that "you can find beauty in many things."

The murals are made by gluing food particles — or almost anything else — to stiff pieces of cardboard.

School Festival Close

Honor Plays Named

BY BERT BINNY

Competition ended Friday night in the 1966 Schools Drama Festival.

It has all been very successful but it has also provided large problems for adjudicator Sydney Risk.

The adjudicator everybody was swarming was that of the Honor Performance plays.

NOT EASY

Mr. Risk had no easy time reaching his decision, particularly as to the elementary schools. Fortified by numerous cups of strong coffee, he sat up late Thursday night reading and rereading notes and scripts.

When he eventually went to bed he dreamed of two elementary plays which, he said, were the closest in quality he had ever encountered in his long adjudication experience.

In the end, George Jay Schell's Make Him Smile, directed by Mrs. Sylvia Hiele, got the nod, just and only just edging out Sir James Douglas School's The Stolen Prince, directed by Mrs. Doris Exton.

NOKED OUT

In the Junior High division, Colquitz with The Pedlar's Progress, directed by Mrs. L. E. Johnston, nosed out Rumpelstiltskin by St. Ann's Academy, directed by Mrs. Jennifer Chatter. The senior Honor Play will be Oak Bay's The Apollo of Bellac, directed by Mrs. Phyllis Dulmage.

These results give Oak Bay eight Honor Performances in the last 13 Festivals; Colquitz, two. 1966 marks the first Honor appearance by George Jay Elementary.

HOT ALONE

With the Norfolk House entry withdrawn, last night's program belonged exclusively to the host school, Victoria High.

Both The Gentle Guardians and Buffalino's Jest were thoroughly entertaining and effective. Ian Poole was noted by Mr. Risk as a most promising young actor but not suited to the older part he played in The Gentle Guardians. The adjudicator suggested more expensive acting would have improved this production which, he added, was excellently mounted in every detail and in practically all scenes. He noted Kerry Mann and Quinn Carson as particularly effective.

In Buffalino's Jest, the visual effect was greater than the audible, said Mr. Risk, and he drew attention to the excellent, facile movement of the players in a costume play.

The final day of competition in the 1966 Schools Drama Festival produced an unexpected and rather unpleasant feature.

Both afternoon and evening programs were curtailed by the absence of one play. Entries from Oak Bay Junior High School and Norfolk House were both withdrawn, the latter very suddenly, on account of flu.

In the afternoon, at Glenlyon Preparatory School, the program started with Central Junior High's Sunday Coast Five Pecos.

HIGHLIGHT

"The players," said adjudicator Sydney Risk, "should understand the Latin temperament—they're a fiery lot—and pull out all the stops."

A real highlight of the production was a knock-down, no-holds-barred fight between Celestina (Linda Poulton) and Salome (Holly Webb), won incidentally by Celestina.

"If the cast had brought to the rest of the play all the energy and vitality they put into the fight, it would have been just right," observed Mr. Risk.

"ON RIGHT TRACK" "The cast was on the right track but didn't go far enough," he added.

The adjudicator found the script of The Portrait of May Laugh—which echoed Gilbert and Sullivan's Ruddigore—rather inept and unfinished. It was performed by Glenlyon School.

"But," said he, "the cast did something for the script."

He commended the staging arrangements and praised the players for a variety of abilities. Geoffrey Bowes (as the Archduchess) was commended for his "poise" and Michael Quebec for his "good gestures" as well as good facial expression and use of the eyes.

"A good, consistent performance," said Mr. Risk, "always with reaction."

David Burke as The Portrait, though hampered by enforced immobility, did excellently. Bruce Homer was commended for his "poise" and Michael Quebec for his "good gestures" which were not only appropriate but also technically correct.

"CHARMING" Brian Groos as the young lady, Geselda, was described as "charming without being sickly sweet" and Fred Hughes who played Bruschel provided "good thoughtful line delivery."

Eugene Warr's Silas, P. Jackson was quite adequate and in character.

Competition is now ended and the Honor Performance goes on at Victoria High School this evening at 8 p.m. and will be followed by the announcement and distribution of awards.

Major Marion Bikes into Battle with Thieves

God Watching! You'll Go to Hell!

LONDON (AP) — As the wages gang swooped for the snatch Maj. Marion Dunn of the Salvation Army biked into battle.

Her war cry shrilled through the street: "God is watching. You will go to hell! With that she jumped off As the three crooks waded left a bank with a $1,500 ($4,500) payroll, Maj. Marion mobilized her forces.

It happened Thursday in London's tough dockland area. Said the militant Maj. Marion, 51:

"I suppose I got a bit carried away."

"I tried to kick one of them when he was on the ground but too many people got in my way and I couldn't get near him."

And with that she pedaled off to play the organ at a prayer meeting.

Only Origin Is Irish

Voyageurs Days Recalled

A National Film Board short feature on the voyageurs will accompany The Slender Thread, starting Monday at the Capitol Theatre.

Filmed on the Ottawa, the Mattawa, and other rivers that once formed the 3,000-mile trade route to Athabasca, the film recalls the days of the early French fur traders.

MONTREAL (CP) — A wax statue of Father of Confederation Thomas d'Arcy McGee may not ride in Sunday's St. Patrick's Day parade here because of objections from John A. Belton, Irish ambassador to Canada.

Mr. Belton said Thursday he will not review the parade if the statue appears in it. He was not objecting to McGee personally but to the fact that it was a wax figure.

"D'Arcy McGee may have been born in Ireland, he may have been a great Canadian and a father of Confederation. But what has that got to do with Ireland?"

"You may as well have Carleton on Macdonald riding in the parade."

Mr. Belton said he had received "solemn and formal assurance" from Francis J.

Quinn, president of the United Irish Societies of Montreal, that the wax figure would not appear in the parade.

Couple Hurt In Accident

TERRACE (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Tom Field, both about 60, of Kelowna, suffered multiple lacerations in a car-truck crash on the Terrace-Kitimat highway. Police said their car skidded on snow and collided with a logging truck driven by John Folger of Terrace, who was not injured.

Humane Society's Findings

Most Skinned Seals Died Painlessly

Coward

TORONTO (CP) — Most animals inspected by humane society officials during this year's seal hunt in the Gulf of St. Lawrence were incapable of feeling pain before being skinned, but at least 50 did suffer pain before death, says a report issued here Friday.

The report recommends some other method of killing seals than clubbing on shooting but makes no recommendations.

Issued after its five authors spent three days inspecting seal hunting in the Gulf, the report says the majority of several hundred seals examined had been knocked unconscious and were incapable of feeling pain. But others had not suffered damage to their skulls from clubbing or shooting, and the authors could not tell if the animals had been rendered unconscious before being skinned.

The report recommends a conference to consider amended regulations to be put into effect before the 1967 seal hunt. The officials included Jacques Vallee, Montreal, executive secretary of the Canadian Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; Dr. Forbes MacLeod of the Saint John, N.B., SPCA; Dr. Norman Scollard, curator of the Riverdale Zoo, Toronto; Dr. D. Pimlott, Canadian Audubon Society, Toronto, and Tom Hughes, general manager of the Ontario Humane Society.

The report says 59 seals examined Wednesday appeared to have suffered unnecessary pain. "We found that of these, nine had been struck a blow in the region of the nose or head, and despite loss of blood to a varying degree, these animals were alive, fully conscious and in pain."

"The remaining 50 had been slashed by a knife to a varying degree in the region of the throat and chest, resulting in serious wounds and severe bleeding."

The report said tests with a stunning pistol shows this was effective in rendering the animals unconscious or killing them but was impractical in the weather encountered during the hunt.

Until a better method can be developed "a club of proper design, properly used, is the best and most humane method of killing young seals."

'Too Much' Says Soaring Mayor

OKLAHOMA CITY — "That's too much," an astonished and slightly shaken Mayor George Shirk said for all to hear.

At a tree planting ceremony, a reporter thought a bit more glamor would be added to photographs if Shirk stood on the tree and both were lifted a few feet off the ground by a crane. Shirk agreed.

But crane operator G. W. Mansel took the tree, with the mayor holding on for dear life, a full 60 feet to the fifth-floor roof of a downtown building where the tree was to be planted.

VANCOUVER — Foreclosure action involving former New Westminster mayor Bess Wood has been dismissed in B.C. Supreme Court. The mortgages have been fully satisfied, lawyer Colin D. McQuarrie told Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes.

LONDON — Actor-playwright Noel Coward, just arrived in Britain after a long illness, will play an elderly writer, a middle-aged publisher and an American millionaire in his new trilogy, Suite in Three Keys, opening here April 14.

DALLAS — William Eugene Crawford has been sentenced to 25 years in prison for shooting Mrs. Pauline McLemore, who used to be his wife — and police are hoping for a rest. In 1962, 1963 and 1964 he was imprisoned for varying terms — each time for assaulting his former wife.

CHICAGO — A circuit court jury has ruled that Ellen Borden Stevenson, former wife of the late Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, is incompetent to handle her own affairs. Members of her family testified that her assets dwindled from $400,000 to $100,000, and that she now owes $80,000.

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. — A month ago he was Donald Vaughn, a Newton, Mass. dry cleaner with a wife, Joann, twins, a new car and fine church-attendance record. Today he is Donald Stewart Helen, back in prison from which he escaped in May, 1964, and where he was serving a life sentence for murder.

LONDON — Caitlin Thomas, widow of Welsh poet Dylan Thomas, lost a high court action for possession of the original manuscript of her husband's most famous work, the play Under Milk Wood. Mr. Justice John Anthony Pownall said he believes Thomas had given the manuscript to a friend, BBC producer Douglas Cleverdon.

LONDON — The man who invented radar has married for the third time. Sir Robert Watson-Watt, who has lived in New York in recent years, married Dame Katherine Forbes, wartime director of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force.

HOLLYWOOD — Actor Boris Karloff, 78, is "continuing to convalesce satisfactorily," according to attendants at Good Samaritan Hospital, where he underwent minor kidney surgery two weeks ago.

OTTAWA — The Raymond Deane trial was adjourned until Tuesday by Judge Frank Costello. A further adjournment then is expected until March 17. The adjournment followed legal argument of more than a week in the absence of the jury.

DETROIT — Rabbi Morris Adler has died, victim of an assassin who shot him down in his

the office of a service station about 2 a.m.

NEW YORK — Nebraska-born Mari Sametia Sandos, 65, a chronicler of the old west for some 30 years with 17 books to her credit, has died. She had been suffering from cancer. One of her non-fiction works, Cheyenne Autumn, published in 1953, was made into a movie.

MOSCOW — The oldest man in the Soviet Union was quoted as saying he will be 161 years old this year. Shadril Mishimov, a shepherd and gardener from a mountain village of Soviet Azerbaijan, was quoted by Pravda, official organ of the Soviet Communist party, as having more than 200 living relatives.

BOGALUSA, La. — A Negro U.S. Army captain, home on leave before reporting for duty in Viet Nam, was wounded when an unidentified assailant fired at him from close range. Assistant Police Chief L. C. Terrell said Capt. Donald B. Sims, 29, of Sun, La., was hit while he talked in a coin telephone in Daniel Johnson told reporters at the end of the legislature sitting. The lieutenant-governor will be replaced by a president, and the new post could even be an elective position, he said.

TACOMA, Wash. — Tiltford G. Baker, 34, was sentenced to life imprisonment and James E. Evans, 31, to a maximum of 10 years for the $45,000 ransom kidnapping of Tacoma boy Charles Byde III.

BESSEMER, Ala. — William Orville Baker, 41, one of three Ku Klux Klansmen charged in the murder last year of civil rights worker Viola Gregg Liuzzo, has died of a heart attack.

Quebec — The post of lieutenant-governor of Quebec will be abolished after the next provincial elections, after the Union Nationale party has regained power in Quebec, Leader

Stan Delaplane Tips You Off

Within the last week in Mexico, the gasoline stations have put in yellow pumps marked "P-100." Better grade than the old Gasolmex. I could not make the car ping on any pull. So writes Dr. J. K. Perry, a friend of mine who's doing an extensive trailer trip. He found P-100 as far north as Hermosillo.

"Would you know the place we can go in Hong Kong for a swim watch at the lowest price?" I'd go first to Lane, Crawford Ltd., on the Hong Kong side. This is a reliable, one-price department store. Watches under Hong Kong duty-free. Usually just a little under Swiss prices.

"... a place to travel where prices are still reasonable and people more friendly. We found Europe very commercial ..."

Well, tourist business is in the billion-dollar class. It's bound to get a commercial feeling. You might try New Zealand and Australia where they are trying to get in that commerce, but local residents haven't felt it yet.

To get a more relaxed time in Europe, you have to get out in the country. (New York is commercial, too, as you'll find if you forget to tip a taxi driver.) I'm convinced the traveller to Europe does better now by basing in a small town. Get pensions, room with meals — and take day trips around. The crush of tourists in the capitals in summer is too much to have fun.

"What about clothing for a trip to Ireland this summer?" First a rain coat and an umbrella. It rains somewhere every day in Ireland, they say. Usually you happen to be there too.

Ireland is a tweedy sort of country, even in Dublin. Never very warm. And even in summer I've worn a sweater under the coat. Dark suit for men, a cocktail dress or two for women in Dublin evenings. If you're going to be invited to something social, then you'll need formal. For these things, the Irish dress to the nines.

"We plan to do some driving in the American Southwest this summer vacation. Can you estimate per day costs for two?"

The AAA says $35 a day for gas, motels, meals, entertainment. Last time I drove across country was four years ago and it cost me that much alone. Depends on how much you drive. Anywhere, it's movement that raises costs.

"How do we get tickets to shows in London?" The hall porter — (the man behind the desk with crossed keys on his uniform collar) — will do the whole thing. That's on of his jobs, and you tip him when you check out. London shows start around 6:30 to 7. So pick a restaurant, and have the hall porter book you a table for after the show, too.

"My husband refuses to go to Europe as he has been told you cannot get a good dry martini. I have offered to carry prepared mix, but ..."

The American dry martini is just like home at all big tourist hotels. But here's a list of guaranteed oases: Excelsior in Rome; Baur-au-lac in Zurich; Palace in Madrid; Ritz in Lisbon; Plaza Athenee in Paris; Savoy in London; Hilton in Berlin, Athens, Istanbul. You can go around Europe from olive to olive.

Envies Away-from-It-All Types

Nearly everybody is looking for a foxhole these days of stress and tranquillizers. A friend of mine bought a trailer recently and took off for Mexico. He writes:

"We are on the beach at Mazatlan. We catch all the fish we want in a half hour or so. What we don't use, we put in a tub and other people in the trailer park take what they want."

"Beer is seven cents a bottle. Many people bring in portable freezers loaded with steaks. When they go home, they pack the freezer with shrimp, cleaned, shelled and frozen. Five pounds for $1.44."

That's the warm and lazy life. That is hard to take. The world is full of warm, lazy people in warm, lazy retreats. They all write to me.

"We located an excellent small hotel in Estoril which is just 20 minutes from Lisbon. The weather is always about 70 degrees, and we are only a few blocks from the beach."

"The golf course is a block away. Flowers grow outside our windows. The food is always fresh and good. The total price for two with room and all meals is less than $170 a month."

In my supermarket, the price of beef is going up. The federal taxman cometh. Oh, Oh. But on the golden isle of Crete—

"We have been here two months now. The off season rate for two is $7 a day. We have never seen water so blue."

"After nearly a year of travel with our own trailer in Europe, we found our highest daily cost was $14 a day (in France). The lowest was $6 a day in Spain."

"That includes everything: food, drinks, laundry, entertainment, etc."

What are we doing here, dear friends? When warm Aegean winds blow on the grape vines of Grecian islands and spring lamb is 10 cents a tender pound. "They have a way of cooking it with rice and honey and grape leaves that is really delicious."

Why the daily $ to 5 o'clock when fresh Turpan oysters are being opened on the waterfront at Mazatlan? And the tangy beer from Monterey is sold for seven cents a foaming bottle? When flowers bloom beside the sea at Lisbon, and fresh sardines and Dao wines are on the breezy terrace table?

"We came over to Madeira" (writes my correspondent) "and like it so well we intend to spend six months at least."

"We spent a week at Red's — the best hotel — for $5 a day each which includes three meals and afternoon tea! But these are winter prices when all the British come down here to escape the English winter."

"We looked around and found a fine little hotel where we have a cottage at $5 for two with all meals and tea. Besides which we have maid service and laundry."

"The weather is sub-tropical and flowers are blooming everywhere."

This sort of mail destroys my day. It's positively a relief to get a letter from Brussels:

Egekov Castle, built in 1550, is set on oak piles rammed into bed of lake.

Past Lingers On In Old Denmark

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (CNS) — Storks nest on the roofs of its lovely old houses.

Ribe is the country's oldest town, founded in 948.

In the south of Funen is the intriguing old manor house of Egekov, built by a Danish nobleman in 1530 on oak piles rammed into the bed of a lake. It has brick-red walls and impressive towers.

The town of Ebeltoft, on the coast, has a toy-like town hall built in 1576. It is said to be the smallest town hall in the world.

Roskilde near here was the capital of Denmark in the Middle Ages. Its cathedral, with twin spires, was built in 1170. It has 40 royal tombs, many containing Danish kings of the last 1,000 years.

One place that draws many visitors is Funen, known as the "Fairytale Island" of Denmark. At Nyborg the main attraction is Nyborg Castle, the oldest in Scandinavia, built in 1170.

The famous Little Belt Bridge spans the strait between Funen and the Jutland peninsula, which is the Danish mainland.

Thousands of tourists annually make for the medieval town of Ribe, not merely because it dates so far back in history but also because of the storks that

Bennett Lights Symbolic Torch

Fireworks, Formalities Launch Birthday Party

By BILL STAVDAL

Fireworks turned Victoria's night sky into glory Friday as British Columbia began celebrating its 100th birthday.

An overcast March night became a summer evening briefly as the calm waters of the Inner Harbor glinted beneath a cascade of fiery color.

SYMBOLIC TORCH

The fireworks were counterpointed with formality in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel, where 400 invited guests heard Premier Bennett declare the centennial caravan open and saw him light a symbolic torch.

The torch, carried by Queen's Scout James Horncastle, was rowed into mid-harbor to light one of 200 bonfires which blazed across B.C. at 9:30 p.m. Friday.

But eyes of the crowd lining the harbor turned from the tiny fire on a float to a 17-gun salute boomed from cannon on the shoreline to the west.

It was actually a 34-gun salute for hundreds standing in front of the Empress Hotel. The report smacked off the front of the old building, and because of its shape the echo in places was louder than the original.

The cannonade was still going on when a quarter-hour fireworks display showered into the sky.

A crowd estimated by police at 2,000 but probably much larger ignored dignitaries arriving from the formal dinner in the hotel to be first to visit the centennial caravan.

EYES ON SKY

All eyes were on the sky.

Gilded Captain Vancouver, watching from his perch atop the legislative buildings, glinted more brightly in the spectacle.

B.C. was saying whoopee in technicolor.

Fourteen Seek Positions

NANAIMO — Seven new directors will be elected to the Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting March 16 at the TallyHo Travelodge.

Trust Judgment About Students Teachers Told

A distinguished educator at the University of Victoria urged Greater Victoria teachers Friday to trust their own judgment more in assessing student progress.

"It is high time we ceased to worship the idol of objectivity, for it is a false god," Dr. William A. Brownell told about 150 teachers, principals and superintendents attending a two-day seminar on evaluation of pupil progress.

Speaking in the Landsdowne campus' Young Building, Dr. Brownell warned that objectivity—accepting only one "right" answer—can be a strait-jacketing influence on education.

VISITING LECTURER

Dr. Brownell, 70, a specialist in educational psychology, is the former dean of education at the Berkeley campus of the University of California. He is lecturing here for a year.

The seminar is co-sponsored by the university, the three capital region school districts and the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

It is one of many such in-service training events being held nowadays to keep teachers abreast of changes in education.

Celebrations Too Dynamic

B.C.'s centennial celebrations got off with too loud a bang to suit at least two Victoria residents Friday night.

"I haven't heard anything like it since the First World War," said George E. Bennett, 208 Cross, "and I was in the artillery."

Mr. Bennett said the blast of the saluting guns knocked ornaments from the shelves of his home.

"I just managed to grab the canary cage before the stand tipped over," he said.

He said he phoned the nearby Net Loft Restaurant where 30 people were having dinner. "They thought their whole place was going to cave in," he said. "I'm all in favor of celebrations but not when they destroy people's property."

Miss Maybell Kirkpatrick, 218 Cross, was minding a sick dog when the house-shaking blast took place. "I thought it would drive him mad," she said.

NO BREAK

The mayor said he had a talk with Aldermen Baird and Parrott in his office and did not believe the Baird statement was meant to break the common front the city was presenting in opposition to the bill.

He received a photostat copy of the bill, the mayor said, and it appeared to be just as represented although further study had to be given it.

The mayor said that he had applied to the office of Premier Bennett for an interview on the subject with the premier and Mr. Williston but had not had a reply.

MAYOR

Mayor Toone recalled that he had been deputized by city council to deal with the government in this question and thought that if any further meetings with the minister were to be held he should have been the one to represent the city and not the two aldermen.

Ald. Clyde Savage agreed. Earlier, Ald. Parrott could not be pinned down on how he felt about the water issue.

He agreed that the matter had been left in the hands of the mayor and disagreed with the issuance of a statement by Ald. Baird.

Ald. Hugh Stephen agreed that any statement should have come from the mayor.

City's Water Stand Deflated by Baird

By A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

The solid front Victoria city council has presented against provincial legislation, which would strip the city and district of its water rights, was shattered Friday.

Following an informal meeting with Water Resources Minister Williston and Public Works Minister Chant at the legislature Thursday evening, Ald. Robert Baird issued a statement in which he called the whole dispute a "tempest in a water pot."

Also present at the meeting at the legislature were Ald. Cecil Parrott, former city clerk, M. Frank Hunter, and Victoria MLA Donald Smith and city solicitor T. P. O'Grady.

NO SEIZURE

The provincial bill, which will return all water rights in the Greater Victoria Water District to the Crown, was given first reading in the legislature Thursday evening.

"There is no question of seizing rights, land or increase in taxes," Ald. Baird said.

"This legislation will bring us in line with the other 400 water districts throughout the province."

"Our city engineer, who is water commissioner, is quite cognizant of the fact that there are complications regarding water tables, watersheds, etc., that go far beyond the scope of one municipality. The proposed legislation brings the water rights under one roof with no thought of creating hardship to anyone."

CITY OWNED

"The question of lands owned by the city at Elk-Beaver Lake are a direct interest to our citizens," according to Ald. Baird.

"It is not generally recognized that Beaver Lake is a man-made reservoir and not a lake with the city owning the land beneath. I look forward, as parks chairman, to the day when this valuable recreation area will be developed for the benefit of our tourists and citizens alike."

"Further I see no reason, and as a matter of fact it would be desirable for all concerned, to sit down with the minister and get the true picture so that the situation of water, parks, recreation can be resolved and the way paved for long overdue development," the statement concluded.

'SERIOUS'

News of the break in the City Hall front came to Mayor Toone after the statement was released to the press. He conveyed a meeting of Ald. Baird and Ald. Parrott in his office.

Asked about the statement, the mayor was cautious.

"It certainly is no 'tempest in a water pot' and the government move has very serious implications for the city," he said.

"The letter I wrote yesterday (referring to a strong city council letter of protest to Mr. Williston) indicates how I feel. It is a very serious problem."

'A Great Privilege To Share History'

By GORDON DODD

The past, the present and the future of British Columbia were feted Friday night.

A packed Empress Hall ballroom sat down to a menu which included, rightly enough, British Columbia smoked salmon and Williams Lake beef tenderloin, then in good spirits turned to the witty, glowing tribute that special guest Viscount Amory, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, had to pay the province at the inauguration of its centennial festivities.

The festivities will continue until Nov. 19 — the date on which 100 years ago, the union of Vancouver Island and the mainland was consummated.

115 YEARS AGO

March 11 was chosen for their commencement because it was 115 years to the day that British rule was established in the Pacific Northwest with the founding of the colony of Vancouver Island.

Said Viscount Amory: "We feel our roots are very deep in the soil of British Columbia."

To mark the occasion, he presented Premier Bennett with a replica silver gilt canoe made in 1830. It was, he said, "a symbol of the pride and gratitude our company feels that it has been our privilege to have participated in the historic events we are celebrating today and to accept our heartfelt good wishes for the challenging days that lie ahead."

Viscount Amory said that the early pioneers would be amazed if they could see the British Columbia of today. "As amazed perhaps we ourselves would be if we could steal a preview of the B.C. of 2066."

"Ups and downs it has experienced. But each pause has been followed by a fresh surging wave which has carried the province forward to new levels of expansion and achievement."

Today, B.C. was the fastest-growing area in Canada and its prosperity was the source of admiration and rejoicing to its friends everywhere, nowhere more than in Britain, the ancestral home of so many British Columbians, he said.

'WHO CAN DOUBT?'

"Gazing into the crystal ball, who can doubt that the future holds dazzling prospects of further achievement — greater perhaps than any we can dream of today?" Viscount Amory asked.

He said British Columbia should "hitch its wagon to a star" and not be ashamed if its young men and women dreamed dreams and saw visions like their ancestors did before them.

MacKenzie, Fraser, Thompson, Simpson — "you and we are the heirs of their heroism."

IMAGINATIVE

The old paddle steamer, the S.S. Beaver, launched on the Thames in 1835, servant of the Hudson's Bay Company and other employers in the west for 51 years. Viscount Amory said it was an imaginative action on the part of the Royal Canadian Navy to contrive a full-scale model of her as part of the centennial celebrations.

Viscount Amory was introduced by Lieut. Governor George Pearkes to the audience which included many provincial and civic dignitaries.

MacKenzie, Fraser, Thompson, Simpson — "you and we are the heirs of their heroism."

Viscount Amory, who was for two years British High Commissioner in Ottawa before his present appointment, said his company, which had at present one fifth of its capital invested in the province, would continue to develop its operations here.

'MELANCHOLY'

Earlier he had mused on the days Canada was shared in a productive partnership of Crown and company, on the day in 1848 when the Hudson's Bay Company received a grant of the whole of Vancouver Island, and on "the poignant feelings of melancholy" the company held for April 3, 1867, when the Island was reconveyed to the Crown.

Viscount Amory said it was in "that remarkable man, James Douglas," that co-operation between the Crown and company was most dramatically personified.

Russian Women

Claim Equality with Men

By K. C. THALER

MOSCOW (UPI) — American and European womanhood may draw an instructive lesson from the results of total emancipation of women as evidenced in this land of equality of the sexes.

The Soviet system, in "liberating" Russian womanhood has thrown wide open the doors for them in all walks of life, without discrimination.

But the "privileges" has drawbacks as well as its attractions.

The visitor to this city is struck by the preponderance of women in nearly every discernible sector of public life.

It is not uncommon for the western observer to see batteries of women, clothed in unbecoming working suits, their heads covered by scarves, working on building sites. They just love to drop in after supper if we have nothing planned.

My in-laws are not intellectuals, which is all right with me, but the only reading they do is the TV guide so they can decide which show to watch.

The minute dinner is over they plug their eyeballs into the TV set. During the commercials they make a feeble attempt at conversation.

Unless there is something exceptional on TV I prefer to read. I have rigged up a little Russian women did much of the hard work before the revolution. But now they can claim equality with men in every respect.

More and more are penetrating the professions, while at the same time more continue to pour into the less attractive sphere of manual labor.

According to official figures about one-third of all engineers in this machine-minded country are women. Women comprise over 40 per cent of the college trained agronomists, livestock experts and veterinary surgeons.

Nearly three-fourths of the doctors, two-thirds of the teachers, and 60 per cent of economists and one-third of the lawyers are women.

Shops are staffed almost exclusively with women. So is catering. Even men's barbers are almost exclusively recruited from among women.

State-run kindergartens and similar institutions are designed to facilitate the recruitment of women labor. They look after the children while the mothers are at work.

However, behind this development lie more pressing factors than the mere application of the sexes.

The war with its vast losses of manpower has left the nation with a surplus of 20 million women.

They stepped into the breach caused by the mass annihilation of manhood in World War II and except for the more hazardous occupations they are likely to remain there.

As the excess of women over men is being reduced by the post-war generation women are eased out of coal mining and the more hazardous chemical industries.

Following the family dinner, friends arrived with gifts, greetings and flowers for Mr. and Mrs. Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips came to Canada with their family in 1912 and lived at Nanaimo for 18 years. In 1930 they moved to Victoria, where Mr. Phillips, a popular musician, continued as organist and music teacher.

Now in his 88th year, he enjoys teaching his two grand-children.

Mrs. Phillips, still a busy housewife, is looking forward to more work in her flower garden very soon.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our teen-age daughter has made us feel that we are freaks from outer space who know nothing about young people.

Last night Isabella had a date with a 17-year-old boy who comes from a good family. The young man arrived promptly at 8:00 p.m. Isabella was not ready so my husband and I tried to make small talk. The boy lit up a cigarette immediately. No one in our family smokes and so we do not have ash trays around but this did not seem to bother him in the least. He flicked the ashes in the cuff of his pants. When he had finished smoking the cigarette he put it out in a potted plant and left it there.

My husband and I were non-plussed but we said nothing. This morning we discussed the incident with Isabella and she said we are square and much too critical of her friends. We'd like your opinion. — OUTER SPACE MOTHER AND DAD.

Dear O.S.M. and D.: Unless smoking is against your religion or strictly prohibited in your home for health reasons, you should have ash trays around for guests who do smoke. What did you expect the kid to do with the cigarette after he had lit it up? Eat it? Sorry, but I'm with your daughter. From your description of the boy you're lucky he used the plant and not the carpet.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's parents are very nice people and we get along well. They live across the street and just love to drop in after supper if we have nothing planned.

My in-laws are not intellectuals, which is all right with me, but the only reading they do is the TV guide so they can decide which show to watch.

Celebrities Make Records For an Audience of One

By PATRICIA McCOORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — A

nuclear physicist, doctor, lawyer or housewife sits in a quiet place and reads a book aloud.

More than 2,000 persons nationwide do the same thing on a regular basis, pitching the voice at the receiving end of a recording device.

The recordings never hit the most popular record lists.

Most, in fact, just reach an audience of one—a student in high school or college, a young man or a young woman who must use ears instead of eyes to study the textbooks. Blindness is the reason.

"Readers" who tape the books for just one student are volun-

war.

At first blind veterans were the only beneficiaries. Recordings of textbooks helped them to

Now, more than 1,500 college and 800 high school students depend on the recordings as they make their way up the academic ladder in classes geared for the sighted students.

Some go on depending on recordings.

Take the case of David bureau. Legally blind, the 50-year-old Ganser supervises a staff of 35 persons.

When he finds it necessary to keep abreast of the police and legal work, the research and accompanying statistics which are an integral part of his job, he depends on colleagues and his wife to read to him.

For intensive research and study, he uses recordings, many of which are supplied him free

Blind.

Ganser began to go blind more than 25 years ago. His progressive eye disease, emotionally debilitating at first,

never lessened his desire to continue to live a normal, independent life.

He learned to take long walks by himself, in traffic, without a white cane and without a dog.

He went to night school and he taught himself Braille.

He took up social and square dancing. He is so well adjusted to his handicap, in fact, that his wife and colleagues often must remind themselves that he sees not with his eyes as they do.

phenomenally well-developed

At home, at the end of the working day and on week-ends,

ing, cleaning and dishwashing.

Often, he and Mrs. Ganser go

number of occasions, Ganser has won free week-ends at a

a prize in speed-skating on ice

Recording for the Blind volunteers seldom meet the people who benefit by the "reading for an audience of one."

read are Cornelia Otis Skinner,

Celeste Holme, John Mason

Brown, John Gunther and

Edward G. Robinson.

Klassen-Collis

Couple to Live In Vancouver

Baskets of pink gladiolus and white chrysanthemums decorated St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, for the double-ring ceremony uniting in marriage Marilyn Verena Collis, and Mr. Richard Brian Klassen.

Canon Hywel Jones officiated at the wedding for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Elden Collis, 2033 Allenby Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Klassen, Chilliwack, B.C.

Matron of honor, Mrs. T. P. Higgins, and bridesmaid, Miss Linda Thompson, the bride's cousin, wore street-length sheath dresses of aqua nylon over taffeta with matching lace jackets. They wore lace-trimmed bows in their hair and carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Robert Isaak was best man. Mr. Edward Collis ushered guests to their pews.

Mr. W. A. Gornall proposed the toast to the bride at the reception which followed in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

For a honeymoon trip to the United States the new Mrs. Klassen chose for her going-away outfit a teal blue suit and hat en tone, and a camel hair coat. An orchid corsage complemented her ensemble.

Mr. Maunsell and his wife have just returned to the city after a three-year stay in their homeland.

Among topics he touched upon were the exclusive writers' club in Essex to which he once belonged, the progress being made in England in consolidating religious denominations and the paradox in the London area of trying to maintain the green belt and meeting a housing shortage.

Branch vice-president Ed Arnold was in the chair for the meeting, held in the Douglas Building.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Old Age Pensioners Association No. 1 will hold a Shamrock luncheon Tuesday, March 15, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the Hall at 1600 Government Street.

LONDON (Reuters)—A scandal over a mock trial and fining of seven workers for refusing to go on a wildcat strike was thrown into the British election arena Friday.

The workers, at a British Motor Corp. factory in central England, were "sentenced" by other workers at a gathering held under a hangman's noose a week ago.

One of the seven was reported to have paid a £3 ($9) fine. The rest refused and two of them now are reported sick with worry.

THE BANKRUPTCY ACT FOR SALE BY TENDER
ELIC PETERSEN CONSTRUCTION LTD.
VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA
Sealed tenders will be received by the undersigned until 10:00 o'clock on Friday, the 18th day of March, 1966, for a thirty-one suite apartment block.

Name: Rockcliffe Villa Apartments, Street Address: 745 Lansdowne Street, Victoria, B.C.
Local Description: Lot 1, Section 10, District: Esquimalt, Plan 1117.

Tenders must be accompanied by a certified cheque for 10% of the estimated cost of the work and must be in the name of the tenderer. The tenderer must also submit a copy of the tender to the undersigned.

Disput will be forfeited to the undersigned for liquidated damages if the sale is not completed by the purchaser. Changes will be returned to unsuccessful tenderers, the highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

All costs of transfer to the purchaser must be borne by the purchaser. To insure uniformity each tender must comply with the following conditions:

1. The tender price after real estate agent's commission, if applicable, must be disclosed.
2. The adjustment date for taxes, insurance, etc., will be April 1st, 1966.

3. The balance of the cash payment must be made to the trustee on or before April 1st, 1966.
4. A solicitor or agent for the offerors must be in attendance when tenders are opened. Tenders will be opened at 10:01 o'clock in the forenoon in the office of Harold S. Macdonald.

5. If applicable, a firm commitment from a recognized lending institution, setting out mortgage monies available to the tenderer, must accompany the tender.
The property may be inspected by contacting Mr. Cross, the building superintendent, or from D. J. Hendry of the trustee's office.

Dated at Vancouver this 8th day of March, 1966.

Conservative party leader Edward Heath at a press conference Friday branded the affair a perversion of justice and said the public is worried about it. He said the question is whether the labor union concerned would discipline those responsible.

Labor union reform is a plank in the election platform of the opposition Conservatives.

Nick Barlow, a shop steward at the BMC plant, said one of the men fined now is in hospital, "frightened to death about the court." Walter Talbot, 61, was found exhausted in a ditch 12 miles from his home Thursday.

SAW NOOSE
Another man, William Renahan, 45, was said to be suffering from nervous exhaustion. He told reporters that at the mock trial he and six other men who went to work during a wildcat strike were pushed on to a platform before about 300 fellow workers who jeered and shouted.

"I saw the rope with a hangman's noose and heard somebody shout 'Hang them,'" Renahan said.

More U.S. Eyes To Scan Boats
SEATTLE (AP)—The Coast Guard plans stepped-up surveillance of foreign fishing activities in the North Pacific, say Sen. Warren Magnuson (D, Wash.) and Sen. E. L. Bartlett (D, Alaska).

Magnuson, chairman of the senate commerce committee, and Bartlett, a member of the committee, told the development in a message from Washington, D.C.

The senators said that Coast Guard officers, seeking authorization of funds for new ships and aircraft and for construction of new shore facilities, told the committee two of the three long-range C-130 planes requested in their budget would be assigned to patrol duty as far west as 175 west longitude.

Loss Heavy From Quake
TOKYO (AP)—Chinese Communist authorities say an earthquake caused widespread casualties and damage in the Sing-tai area, 210 miles south of Peking. The New China news agency said "350 production brigades of 30 people's communes in the district suffered losses of varying degrees."

Driver Speeds To His Death
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A sports car roared down an airport runway and into San Francisco Bay, killing Robert E. O'Rourke, 43, a city policeman. Employees in the control tower watched the car, with the policeman at the wheel, speed into the water without slackening speed.

U.S. Pares Projections
WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. census bureau has revised downward its projections of the U.S. population in 1985, cutting some 3,000,000 to 8,000,000 from its earlier estimates. Revised projections indicate the number of Americans will reach 240,000,000 to 273,000,000 by 1985.

British Exports Hit New High
LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's exports and re-exports reached an all-time record of £448,000,000 ($1,344,000,000) last month, the government announced Friday. Imports at £507,000,000 were only fractionally higher than in January. The deficit on balance of payments was cut to £5,000,000 compared with £45,000,000 in January.

Pruning Plum
Art Willis, author of Pacific Gardening, shows Reg Knapp, 1706 Ruby, correct way to prune plum tree at Woodward's gardening course class this week. Mr. Willis is instructor of six-week course, which has attracted sell-out 41-member class. — (K. H. Kinaman)

Toronto Police Seize Presses
TORONTO (CP)—Police say presses used to print thousands of phony payroll cheques have been seized in a raid on a suburban York Township house. Edward Menton, 23, and Wendy Jenkins, 23, were charged with conspiring to commit forgery, conspiring to utter forged documents and possessing forgery instruments.

Garden Notes

Back Row Stars

By M. V. CHESNUT

Away back in the early spring of 1964 I wrote a series of articles on how to put together a labor-saving border of flowering shrubs. Since that time I have had quite a few requests to do another series, along the same lines, but naming and describing some good herbaceous perennial flowers rather than shrubs.

When you sit down to plan out a bed of perennial flowers, one of the problems you run into is what to plant in the back row. There are lots of good plants to choose from for the front and middle sections—plants ranging from six inches to 2½ feet in height—but there are not too many of the tall fellows for the back of the border. Yet, in order to make a really striking display, you need some first-class plants in the rear row, otherwise the bed will lack distinction. Moreover, you need plants which will provide color over the different seasons of the year.

There is no problem if you stick to the autumn-blooming kinds, for we have more of these than you can shake a stick at—tall Golden Rods, Golden Glow, the newer ornamental sunflowers, the tall of the Michaelmas daisies—but this would leave the back of the border without color all through the summer. Delphiniums are indispensable, of course, but as these are usually out of bloom by the end of June, more kinds are needed to keep up the display through the midsummer season.

The old Jerusalem Cross (Lychalis chalcidion) is a grand plant for this purpose, standing four feet or so in height and with flaming scarlet flowers—a real fire engine red. Another, a bit less arresting to the eye, is Galega hartlandii, a Goatsue standing four to five feet tall carrying a profusion of pea-like blossoms in lavender and white.

I have seen the Tree Mallow (Lavatera obli) used to good effect in the back row, with showy carmine blossoms in late summer. Poorish soil is a must for this plant, for in rich ground it becomes a pusher and shover—too vigorous and spreading. Its cousin Lavatera cashmiriana, though, is free from this fault; this is a slim six-footer bearing rose-pink blossoms all through July and August. Strangely enough, this fine plant doesn't seem to be listed in any of the local nursery catalogues, but it is quite easy to raise from seeds, listed in the Thompson and Morgan seed catalogue.

I think most home gardeners know and love the Red Hot Pokers, but few folks realize that some varieties are tall enough to furnish the rear row of the perennial flower bed. Grace Samuels, for instance, stands 4½ feet tall, blooming through August and September with spikes of a rich amber shade. Mild of Orleans can hardly be called a Red Hot Poker, for its blossoms are a delicate creamy white tinged with green and borne on 4-foot stems. James, about the earliest bloomer of the tribe, stands 5 feet tall, blooming in early July in shades of scarlet tinged with primrose yellow.

Probably the most attention-getting of the tall, back-row perennials is the Foxglove, with stately spikes towering 8 feet or more, mostly in pink and yellow shades. These are grown from fleshy, brittle roots shaped like a starfish, easily damaged through rough handling.

Some of the finest Foxglove lilies are Eremurus bungei, a variety from Iran with flowers in a rich golden yellow. E. robustus in soft pink. E. himalaicus in silvery white, while E. elwesianus, rare and expensive, bears enormous spikes of rose pink flowers.

While I haven't seen them yet, I keep hearing reports of a new race of Foxglove lilies called the Sheldrake Hybrids, developed in England and blooming in shades of orange and amber. One in particular, called Sir Arthur Hazlerigg, is said to produce tall spikes of flowers in a glowing burnished copper shade.

For those of my readers who are not too sure just how to go about the pruning of their roses, I would like to call attention to a series of rose-pruning demonstrations arranged by the Victoria Horticultural Society and open to the general public.

The first of these is scheduled for 2 p.m. today in Victoria Park, Oak Bay, with Mr. George Hepworth and Mr. Head Hepworth demonstrating and explaining the pruning procedure.

On Wednesday, March 23, Mr. Alex Johnston will conduct a similar demonstration in the rose garden, Beacon Hill Park, again at 2 p.m.

ERMA BOMBECK Pleads for the Loner

The Child Who's Different

Every family's got at least one. The child who will not conform . . . the rebel . . . the loner . . . the renegade . . . the one who is different.

As a pre-schooler, he's the wily one with the active thyroid . . . the one who gets locked in restrooms because he stayed behind to find out where the water went when you pushed down the handle.

He's the one who wanders away from home and his arm stuck in a piece of construction pipe. He's the one who rejects store-bought toys in favor of taking the registers out and making tunnels out of old oatmeal boxes.

He gets more lickings than all the other kids put together.

In school, he gets checkmarks for daydreaming, for not being neat, for not working to capacity. It doesn't seem to bother him. In his preoccupation with other things, he is unaware that he drives his family crazy, arriving late for dinner every night . . . wearing his socks and underwear to bed to save time in the mornings . . . cutting the grass only when he needs the money.

The older he gets, the less aware he becomes of his odds with the world. There aren't enough weekends for his interests and his projects.

In the garage is his "pumping heart," which he devised out of plastic sandwich bags, tubing and cake coloring. Cluttering the bedroom is the remains of his puppet show with the blanket (curtain) tucked in the top bunk bed.

On the table is his latest book (it takes an entire afternoon to write them), entitled, Floyd: The Story Of An Insecure Snake With Bad Breath.

Parents are awed by genius. They are content with an average child. They are compassionate toward the slow learner. But the child who stands apart and is none of these only puzzles, confuses, and tries their patience.

They confess to each other their fears for his future, this child who is unpredictable and not only out-of-step with the world, but whose feet rarely touch the ground. "What's to become of him?"

Some of them, with their insatiable curiosity and hard-headed drive, will beat paths of greatness and discovery, the likes of Winston Churchill and Michelangelo.

Others won't be great at all, but with their enthusiasm, in a gination, creativity and penchant for living life to its fullest, who is to say they are not the first to touch the stars?

So he is accident-prone because he daydreams . . . he gets bitten by animals because he's too wildly trusting . . . maintains a closet that the insurance company refuses to insure. Look at him closely. He's something special to remind us all that life is a precious gift to be lived to its fullest.

And as Henry David Thoreau said, "If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears."

SHEILAH GRAHAM and Perennial Bride

Luff at First Sight

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Zsa Zsa Gabor tripped down the aisle last Wednesday for the fifth time. And boy, has she fallen. "Dollink, I'm madly in luff with him," Zsa Zsa told me, pausing in the preparations at her beautiful home in Bel Air that is now on the market for $350,000. "Here you talk to him," said the most glamorous of the Gabor, turning me over to the good-looking Joshua Cosden, Jr. His parents, Josh Senior and Nell were once the leaders of New York Society and he entertained the Prince of Wales when he came to America in the twenties.

"Isn't he handsome?" cooed Zsa Zsa without giving him too much of a chance to say more than hello. "He's everything I want in a man," she continued. "He has the sex appeal of Ruby (the late Porfirio Rubirosa to whom she was engaged before he gave her the famous black eye in Las Vegas), the good looks of Connie (multi-millionaire Conrad Hilton, her second husband—the first was a Turkish diplomat) and the intelligence of George (George Sanders, the sharp-tongued actor, husband number three)."

"How about your last husband, Herbert Hunter?" I asked Miss Gabor. Her voice became sympathetic. "Dollink, he was a dollink, but not for me. I like the tall, greying-at-the-temple type. Herbert is naturally very unhappy, but he hated it here in Hollywood. He could not join the clubs he wanted to. So now he is installed at the Waldorf Towers. I got Connie (who owns the hotel among many others) to give him a beautiful suite. And as a going-away present I gave him my Rolls Royce. I want him to be very chic in New York."

"Where will you live?" I asked Zsa Zsa paused to take a breath. "In Dallas," he assured me, although I could hear Zsa Zsa saying something like "London, of course." "My work is in Dallas," said Cosden, who is described as an oil millionaire.

"But Zsa Zsa has said she wants to continue with her career and that you want her to," I reminded the new groom. "She's a remarkable woman, bless her little heart," he replied. "She must have something to work off all that energy."

How did they meet? "I was chosen to be one of her two escorts when she came to Dallas six weeks ago, for the opening of a theatre in Fort Worth. It was love at first sight, although I've been in love with her all my life."

"It was fate," interrupted Zsa Zsa. "I almost fainted when I first saw him. Then I had to go back two weeks later for a fashion show. Two weeks ago I bought my wedding dress. He didn't know it, of course, but I decided when we first met that I would marry him. Herbert, poor man, was so understanding. He's lonely; why don't you give him a call at the Waldorf Towers? You know, you are his type—he likes blondes. He would make you a marvelous husband." I promised to think it over.

With Zsa being so experienced and all, I thought I'd get some advice about marriage. "How do you propose to make this one work?" I wanted to know. "I'll go anywhere he wants me, I'll give him everything I've got," was her formula. "How about you?" I asked Josh who has been married before and has two stepsons, one 25, and one 20. "She can do anything she wants to, bless her little heart," is his way of making the marriage work. "It will be a success, I am sure; we have a great rapport," he assured me.

Zsa Zsa chipped in: "My last husband is very rich. I am rich too, rich inside. Vot is money?" Actually Zsa Zsa has always been less interested in cash than in love. She lost $36,000 a year in alimony when she married Sanders. I don't know how rich Cosden is. I remember that his father lost millions in the Wall Street crash in '29. But he is pleasant, a lot of fun and they both are deliciously happy.

Don't Blame Boys

SYDNEY HARRIS

Throughout history, boys have always had a great need to prove that they possess the virtues of courage, endurance and skill. And, until modern times, societies have always provided the opportunities for this.

The 20th century rise in juvenile delinquency is, of course, the result of many factors. One of the most important, I am convinced, is the lack of opportunity for boys to prove their prowess without getting into trouble.

As we become more and more urbanized and technological, as the frontier disappears, as the challenge of nature becomes subdued, as density of population and congestion of traffic increase—more and more boys are less and less able to find suitable activities for challenging their physical aptitudes. This is one reason, by the way, that organized sports have become so overemphasized in our time.

Adolescent boys in the big cities find it increasingly difficult to grow up in the traditional fashion. If they are venturesome, they get into trouble; if they are aggressive, there are no proper objects around to vent their aggressiveness on, except each other, in tight little gangs. And, most of all, the kind of men they used to model themselves on—the skilful hunter and trapper—have all but vanished today.

Their models, therefore, become professional athletes or entertainers or criminals—for these are the only three kinds of people in modern society who seem to live outside the established rules, who can get away with forms of conduct denied to men in more conventional occupations.

In primitive societies, the leaders were wise enough to know the value of the rites de passage—the ritual by which a young man proved his emergence into manhood. He was forced to fast, to go into solitude, to paddle through rapids, to engage in journeys strength and skill and stamina. All this was done with community approval, and without really hurting anybody else.

Modern society has taken this away and provided no equivalent to drain off the highly-charged kinetic energies of boys. So they invent their own games—playing "chicken" in autos is one of the most dangerous forms—and use adult society as the antagonist. There is no sense of community in what they do; rather the community has become the enemy.

This has happened in nation after nation, as each country becomes more urbanized and mechanized. It is not so much a moral or a parental problem as it is a "problem of civilization." Much of what we glibly call "delinquency" comes from frustration—for if a youth cannot prove his manhood with tests set and approved by the community, he will prove it to his peers with acts of bravado directed against the community.

Hydrofoil Fight Opens in Court

SEATTLE (AP) — Trial of damage suits totalling $3,000,000 in a battle over control of Northwest Hydrofoil Lines, Inc., opened in Superior Court here Thursday.

William I. Niedermair, president, filed two suits last month in the name of the company. One was for $1,000,000 against Chester W. Lytle, Albuquerque, N.M., and the other for $2,000,000 against eight dissident stockholders who tried to elect Lytle in Niedermair's place.

Niedermair, of Winslow, Wash., contended Lytle had undermined public confidence in the firm and the eight dissidents had failed to fulfill financing agreements.

Northwest Hydrofoil owes $500,000 on a $1,500,000 ocean-going hydrofoil it plans to use in passenger service between Seattle and Victoria. The vessel is still undergoing builder's trials at Baltimore, Md. Lytle's group wants to use the hydrofoil between Florida and the Bahamas.

Police State

Dowding Raps Roadside Suspensions

Lawyer Gordon Dowding Friday branded proposed legislation allowing roadside driver's licence suspensions as a move toward a police state.

Mr. Dowding (NDP-Burnaby) and another lawyer strongly criticized the bill in debate in the legislature.

He said the bill that encompasses new laws against drinking drivers is in effect telling police:

"Do what you will to get these people off the roads."

'INSTANT JUSTICE'

The bill would allow a policeman to suspend a driver's licence if he suspects the motorist of drinking and of having a blood-alcohol content of more than .08 per cent.

The bill also provides for voluntary breathalyzer tests for the motorist to prove his competency to drive and escape a mandatory 24-hour suspension.

Alec MacDonald (NDP-Vancouver East), the other lawyer, said the bill constitutes "instant curbside justice" that is likely unique in the British system of law. He said the bill would give police the power to act as judge, jury and prosecutor.

"This is a very dangerous infringement on civil liberties," he said.

Alan MacFarlane (L-Oak Bay) also a lawyer, said he would support the bill but that the government should admit the whole thing was just an experiment at this stage.

'BOOTLEGGERS'

Bert Price (SC-Vancouver Burrard) attacked a section of the bill that would require police stickers on cars with more than $100 damage before they could be repaired.

Mr. Price said a situation of auto repair bootleggers could develop.

"There is nothing worse than creating a business that will operate outside the law,"

Fire Truck Crash Kills Motorist

VANCOUVER (CP) — A motorist was killed and four firemen were injured late Thursday night in a collision between a fire truck and a car in Vancouver's east end.

Killed was Robert D. Hoyt of Vancouver, driver of the car.

In poor condition in hospital was fireman Don McCavour, 43. Firemen Eric Geddes, James McGuckin and Robert Sullivan were treated at hospital and released.

BUILDINGS

Police said the fire truck was en route to a two-alarm fire at an abandoned lumber yard when the collision occurred.

Murder Appeal Turned Down

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Appeal Court Friday turned down an appeal against conviction by Dalton Gey, 25, convicted of the non-capital murder of one of three youths found shot to death at a campsite near Mission in July, 1964.

Who'll Phone Gerda?

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin was asked Friday to telephone Gerda Munsinger in Munich and ask her if she wants a judicial inquiry into her alleged security case.

A tense, bawling Commons dissolved into laughter when the suggestion was made by H. W. Hurd (NDP, Kootenay West).

He said Prime Minister Pearson set a precedent for such a call a week ago when he telephoned alleged spy George Victor Spencer in Vancouver and asked him if he wanted an inquiry.

"In view of the precedent," Mr. Hurd asked, "will the minister of external affairs undertake to phone Fran Gerda and ask her if she would wish an inquiry and come to Canada to testify?"

Star's Star Found Banks, Too

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Reguly's discovery of Mrs. Gerda Munsinger in Munich Thursday marked the second time in less than two years that the 35-year-old Toronto Star reporter has turned up people who were in the news but believed to be inaccessible.

Reguly found Mrs. Munsinger, a central figure in a reported sex-and-security case that has Parliament in an uproar, in a Munich apartment. Before he found her alive and well, there were reports she had died of leukemia in East Germany.

ALSO FOUND BANKS

In October, 1961, Reguly found Hal Banks, former boss of the Seafarers International Union, on a yacht in Brooklyn, N.Y. Banks had been missing since July of that year when a bailiff visited his suburban Montreal home in an attempt to serve him with a warrant for commit-

A Quiet Girl—Neighbors

MUNICH (UPI) — Police say a blonde named Gerda Munsinger has been living in Munich since returning to Germany from Canada in 1961.

Police told UPI their records list her as born in 1923 and as a "fashion journalist" by profession. Neighbors described her as

She lives alone in a one-room apartment in Munich's famed Schwabing district, recent scene of Bavaria's most daring artists-and-models-type Fasching festival parties.

Commons 'Sick'

Hugh John Fleming, the former premier of Nova Scotia was moved almost to tears as he indignantly and forcefully defended his honor. It was moving, and very sad.

No amount of debate could pressure Mr. Cardin into naming the men he accused, thus clearing the innocent. The justice minister sat in the Commons all day Friday without saying a word.

More than a score of Liberals, including the Prime Minister, were asked why the government refused to name those involved. Not one gave any reason except "they didn't name names when they smeared us."

So the entire government course is set on the essentially negative reasoning that two wrongs make a right.

How it embarked on that course is not clear. Mr. Cardin claims he was provoked into mentioning the case in the first instance. That certainly doesn't explain Thursday's press conference when he said so much more.

Nor does it explain the rumors spreading around the corridors for the past two or three weeks that the Liberals were about to drop a major scandal.

It doesn't explain why Privy

Council president Guy Favreau discussed the Munsinger case with former Conservative justice minister Davie Fulton two weeks ago.

Reliable Liberals swear the government did not intentionally plot the events of the past few days. They concede that Mr. Cardin may have.

Members of both sides of the house say Mr. Cardin is willing to sacrifice his own career to destroy Mr. Diefenbaker. Gordon Fairweather (PC-Royal) expressed this feeling in the House.

"What in God's name have we been up to?"

"We have been witnessing a conspiracy enjoyed by a frustrated minister who wishes to commit hari-kari and is willing to take other people with him."

Certainly, Mr. Cardin and his advisor, Mr. Favreau, have called the shots for the past two days. They are dealing from tremendous strength within the party.

When Mr. Cardin tried to resign Tuesday, several Quebec ministers and members said they would go with him. So Mr. Pearson cannot repudiate his justice minister without wrecking the party.

This touches one of the ugly underlying currents in the whole struggle.

Many Quebec members are convinced that Mr. Diefenbaker and Yukon Conservative Erik Nielsen have deliberately set out to destroy French cabinet ministers.

They are joined in this feeling by the nine-man Ralliement de Creditiste, who have supported their every move. They too are gleefully hoping to sink the two Conservatives.

The whole affair is ugly and fraught with dangerous implications, for the men involved, their parties, parliament and the nation.

A frightening precedent has been set by the justice minister, who used his office to pervert justice to destroy a political opponent.

What is to prevent other ministers delving into old files to lay blanket accusations against future cabinets? What is to prevent Mr. Diefenbaker from doing the same thing?

It may already be too late to stop the Canadian witch-hunt.

No wonder three bright young Liberals said separately, and with irony, they would like to form a completely new political party.

'Past Paralyzing House'

OTTAWA (CP) — J. Patrick Nowlan (PC — Digby - Annapolis - Kings) Friday urged the government to take steps to get the Commons out of a "morass of name-calling" in the Munsinger case.

The tall, young Nova Scotian said rookie back-benchers like himself are becoming fed up with the way old political battles are paralyzing Parliament. "The political passions of the past are being used to pollute the present."

Mr. Nowlan said he disagreed with Donald MacInnis (PC—Cape Breton South) about the worth of a speech by Health Minister MacEachen, another Nova Scotian.

LOGICAL APPROACH

He thought Mr. MacEachen had taken a logical and moderate approach in suggesting how the Munsinger case should be dealt with. But Mr. MacEachen had stopped one step short.

He should have asked that Justice Minister Cardin stand up and name the former minister who had been involved in the Munsinger case.

A judicial inquiry alone wasn't enough.

NEVER APPEAR

"There are some privy councillors who will never be able to appear before a judicial commission."

It was an apparent reference to his father, George Nowlan, a finance minister in the former Conservative government. He died last June.

Mr. Nowlan referred directly to the fact that a former member of the Diefenbaker cabinet had been appointed a lieutenant-governor and couldn't be called before such a commission.

George Pearkes, former Conservative lieutenant-governor of British Columbia.

Bennett Adds One More B.C. Riding

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett surprised the entire legislature Friday by announcing he will add another seat for the Kootenays—boosting total membership in the House from 52 to 55.

It was one of two last-minute concessions apparently aimed at silencing a string of protests against the redistribution bill which would have eliminated three seats by the merging of ridings in the Kootenays.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black had announced at the opening of debate on third and final reading that the name of the new Yale constituency would be amended to become Yale-Lillooet.

DEBATE DRAGGED
This move apparently was made to appease the objections of Lillooet-Sored MLA Don Robinson, who later announced he still intends to vote against the government bill.

A score of members, including Saanich-Sored MLA John Tisdale who said he will vote against third reading, had dragged the debate on for 1½ hours before Premier Bennett pulled back the bill for the two amendments.

The unexpected climax came when the premier stood up and casually but firmly, said: "We live in a democracy. It is the duty of the government to lead and it is also the duty of the government to listen."

GOOD SUGGESTION
Mr. Bennett told the House that the member from Fernie (Liberal MLA Harry McKay) had a good suggestion in his argument that the new Columbia River riding would be too large for a single member.

The premier said the government "proposes to divide that riding, so we will withdraw the bill today and make two ridings of what is now Columbia River."

He confirmed outside the House that the government bill which would have provided for two new members in the House, continued on Page 3

'Social' Link Admitted Sevigny Flays Cardin

MONTREAL (CP)—Pierre Sevigny said Friday he met a Mrs. Munsinger at a party in August, 1959, but said "I will answer no questions on published statements by her."

Mr. Sevigny, associate defence minister in the last Conservative government, issued the following written statement and refused to elaborate on it:

"I met Mrs. Munsinger at a party during the month of August, 1959. I saw her socially a few times during the next few months and our relationship was just that, a social one."

Bank Rate Goes Up Monday

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada Friday night announced an increase to 5½ per cent from 4½ per cent in the bank rate.

The increase is effective Monday. The rate has been constant at 4½ per cent since Dec. 6, 1965, when it was raised from 4½ per cent.

A statement by Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank said:

"The Bank of Canada announced tonight that the bank rate has been set at 5½ per cent effective March 14."

The premier said the government "proposes to divide that riding, so we will withdraw the bill today and make two ridings of what is now Columbia River."

Sukarno Gives Up

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—President Sukarno of Indonesia has signed over his political powers to army commander Lt.-Gen. Suharto, reliable information received here from Jakarta said today.

Sukarno will retain his presidential status.

The president's decision to hand over power was contained in an official announcement, information received in Singapore said.

As his first official act Lt.-Gen. Suharto banned the Indonesian Communist party.

Sukarno was to meet military commanders from all parts of Indonesia at Bogor later today to discuss the mounting crisis arising from nearly two weeks of violent anti-Communist demonstrations by students.

USE HELICOPTERS
Earlier rampaging anti-Communist student mobs blocked streets in Jakarta forcing cabinet ministers to use helicopters to reach the presidential palace for their first full-scale meeting with President Sukarno. Military roadblocks prevented the students from marching on the palace itself.

PEOPLE WARNED
The radio, monitored in Singapore, said a presidential order announced by Suharto warned the people not to take arbitrary action.

GERDA READY TO TELL ALL

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—From "death" in the security files of the RCMP, Gerda Munsinger has risen, in Munich, ready to return to Ottawa to tell all.

And in the capital, her living ghost has stunned the Commons—but far from speechless.

For into the roaring turmoil of the two-day uproar in the House, Creditiste leader Reel Caouette has thrust the name of former Conservative associate defence minister Pierre Sevigny.

WAS IT TRUE?

Was it true, he asked, while the Conservatives howled their protest, that Frau Munsinger was well acquainted with Pierre Sevigny?

Was it true, he shouted above the bedlam, that "sex and security" were involved?

And was it true, he demanded, that a second Diefenbaker cabinet minister was "acquainted" with the Munsinger girl?

He put his questions to Justice Minister Cardin.

NO ANSWERS

But there were no answers. The justice minister remaining silent as a stone as he had throughout the turmoil of the day.

In Montreal, though, Pierre Sevigny, his wife and debutante daughter standing beside him, denied anything and everything but a social acquaintance with the former German beauty queen whom the justice minister says had a trained espionage background.

(Frau Munsinger — she is a divorcee — has denied emphatically the espionage accusation.)

WILDEST DAY
As the wildest day the House has seen in years ended Friday night, Prime Minister Pearson said the order-in-council setting up the scope and terms of reference of the judicial investigation into the case will be prepared this week-end.

The investigation, the prime minister has promised Parliament, will cover "all aspects" of the case, including all the charges Justice Minister Cardin has made in the House and out of it, and especially at his extraordinary press conference that:

● Security was involved in at least a "risk way."

● Former Prime Minister Diefenbaker "mismanaged" the case, knowing it involved security and failing to turn it over to the law officers of the Crown.

● That "more than one" Diefenbaker minister was "involved."

The crux of the day in the House Friday came when Reel Caouette set out to read into the record the Canadian Press summary of the Toronto Star's story of the finding of Frau Munsinger alive, well, talking

Cardin Career Gambled On Shaky Odds

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Lucien Cardin may forfeit his political future on the outcome of the Gerda Munsinger inquiry.

Already, there is evidence that Mr. Cardin has staked his career on a case built on shaky evidence.

CRITICAL AREA
According to sources here, the top-secret file of Miss Munsinger does not substantiate, as Mr. Cardin claimed, that she was active in espionage before she came to Canada in 1955.

This is a critical area for any judge to examine in deciding if the Diefenbaker government erred in the so-called sex-and-security scandal.

People who knew her here and in Montreal cannot believe she was a spy and she, too, has denied it.

Looking through Mr. Cardin's statements in the past week, it is clear he was badly informed on at least four points:

● Miss Munsinger, he said, had died of leukemia. But, as her resurrection showed Friday, she is healthy and happy.

● Miss Munsinger's name was Olga. Her name, in fact, was Gerda.

● Miss Munsinger left Canada for East Germany. But she was found in Munich, which is in West Germany.

● The name in the case, blurted out in the Commons eight days ago by Mr. Cardin, was Monsignor. But it was Munsinger.

HADN'T SEEN FILE
At his celebrated news conference, Mr. Cardin admitted he had not seen the file.

Former Tory justice minister David Fulton, who has seen it, has told Parliament there was nothing improper in his government's handling of the case.

Having erred, apparently, on four or five points about Miss Munsinger, the questions being asked here are:

What does Mr. Cardin really know about the file? What exactly is in it? And how many other points does he have wrong?

END OF ROAD?
If Mr. Cardin is wrong in his contentions that Mr. Diefenbaker mismanaged a case involving a security risk, it would be the end of the road for the minister and Prime Minister Pearson.

If he is right, the same would apply to Tory leader Diefenbaker.

Tory sources here have contended that security was not involved in the case.

The stories go that Mr. Diefenbaker called in a minister and bawled him out over an affair with Miss Munsinger, but the matter died there.

In Hanoi Three Days

Canadian Gives Ho Note from Pearson

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning conferred with North Vietnamese leaders in Hanoi for three days this week, the North Vietnamese news agency reported Friday.

The agency, in a Hanoi radio broadcast, said Ronning carried to Hanoi Prime Minister Pearson's reply to a Jan. 24 letter from President Ho Chi Minh giving North Viet Nam's terms for opening Viet Nam peace talks. The contents of Pearson's letter were not disclosed.

TWO-MAN TEAM

The agency said Ronning, 71, arrived in Hanoi March 7 accompanied by Victor C. Moore, Canadian officer of the three-nation International Control Commission for Viet Nam. It said he conferred with Premier Phan Van Dong and Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh.

Ronning arrived Friday in Saigon, the South Viet Nam capital. Reuters news agency, which said Ronning was not available for comment on his mission, said he was reported planning to go on today to Hong Kong and then to Canada.

STAND EXPLAINED

The North Vietnamese agency said Foreign Minister Trinh clearly explained to Ronning the stand of North Viet Nam, already expounded in Ho's Jan. 24 letter to Pearson and in government statements on the Viet Nam situation.

The prince, a veteran pilot, drew praise from two of the U.S. space men. Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and Lt. Col. Edward H. White II.

"If we have many more people who do that well, we (the astronauts) will go out of business," said White.

"He's a good pilot," echoed McDivitt, who sat with the prince in a mock-up version of the two-man Gemini spacecraft, perched about 15 feet off the ground in a steel frame with an Agena rocket suspended out front.

Obviously enjoying himself, the prince took charge of the spacecraft on three successful docking runs, manoeuvring the Gemini and Agena with controls in the cabin. The Agena slipped gently into a docked position with accurate pilot commands.

Philip, now on a tour of North America, spent nearly three hours at the Manned Spacecraft Centre, training base for the U.S. astronauts.

Philip was guest of honor Friday night for a $100- to $1,000-a-plate banquet, estimated to raise nearly $250,000 for a Houston Variety boys club.

He hopes similar dinners during his tour will raise more than $1,000,000 for charitable projects sponsored by Variety Clubs International, of which he is a life member.

The three-day Texas visit ends today with a three-hour stop in Dallas to discuss the Gemini and Agena with controls in the cabin. The Agena slipped

Bloodhounds Clash

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It will take Parliament a long time to live down the shame of the past two days. The highest court in the land became an instrument in the hands of men determined to destroy other men.

It was like watching a cock-fight. All but those who lost for blood left the historic chamber Friday night with a feeling of total revulsion.

"Sick" was the word members on all sides of the house—and newsmen—used to describe it.

Only the superb sense of timing and unfailing sense of humor displayed by speaker Lucien Lamoureux prevented chaos. It's depressing to think that things will get worse before they get better.

It's easy to blame Prime Minister Pearson, who obviously lost complete control of his cabinet and parliament.

It's even easier to blame Justice Minister Cardin who sparked, then bullied through the whole sordid affair.

But that's too simple to be fair.

There were suggestions in the last campaign they were in some way connected with arson, bankruptcy and even murder.

These attacks culminated when Conservative leader Diefenbaker told the nation a vote for the Liberals was a vote for organized crime.

Stung beyond endurance by fresh attacks in the past few weeks over the Victor Spencer case, they finally succumbed to the temptation to fight fire with fire.

All the venom they had stored up over the years spilled out in the Commons and poisoned parliament.

On the surface, the issue was simple. Mr. Cardin told a press conference that the Munsinger case was in some regards worse than Britain's famed Profumo sex and security scandal.

He accused Mr. Diefenbaker of "mismanagement" of the case.

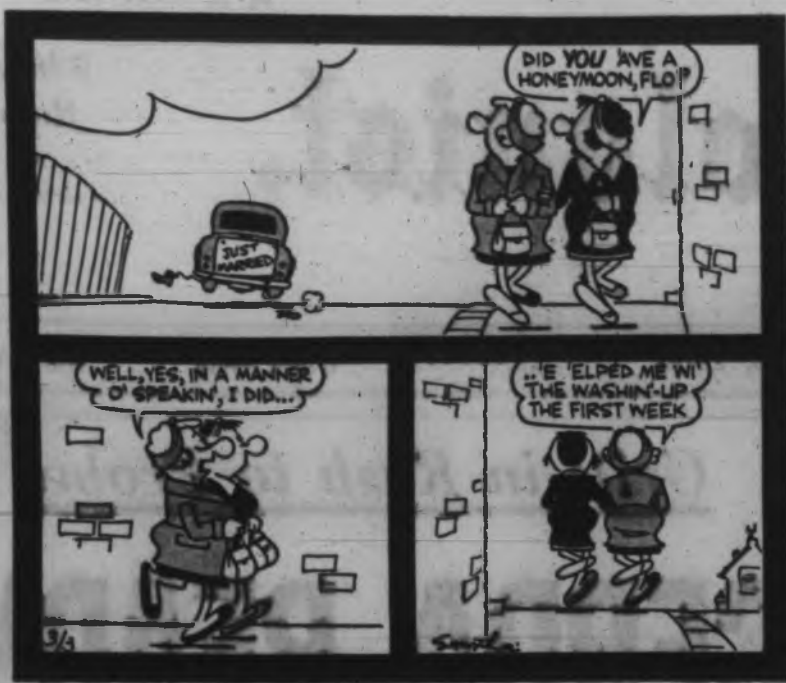

He said more than one Conservative minister was involved with a girl who had been a spy before she came to Canada in 1955. But he refused to say which ministers.

So more than 20 privy councillors, including two lieutenant-governors (one now dead) and a former prime minister were impugned. They and their families are the targets of vicious gossip swirling around this city and their ridings.

and prepared to tell it to the judge.

The Conservatives, who for two days had been clamoring for the justice minister to "name names," fought like tigers to prevent Real Caouette from doing just that.

Erk Nielsen, Conservative MP for the Yukon, known by the Liberals as "Mr. Prosecution" for the opposition, accused Mr. Caouette of "trying to take the newspapers off the shelf" by "naming names" into the Hansard record and to shaking publication privileged.

ADD TO SLANDER

Mr. Caouette denied it. He was simply doing, he protested, what the Conservatives had demanded he do.

There were other cries that it would simply "add to the slander."

Former Conservative veterans minister Churchill suspected Mr. Caouette was running interference for Mr. Cardin, "protecting" him, by "naming the names he could name."

Supporting the Conservative

position, acting speaker Herman Batten ruled that Mr. Caouette would be out of order in reading the Canadian Press summary of the Star into the record.

FULL SPEED AHEAD

But this didn't even slow down Mr. Caouette.

He pressed on, full speed ahead in a running battle with the Conservatives that made for an exciting hour.

Time after time acting speaker Batten batted him down but, irrepressible, up popped Mr. Caouette again every time.

When he showed signs of weakening—which wasn't often and wasn't much—his Creditiste desk-mate, the machine-gun talking Gilles Goggin, filled in.

The Conservatives were "afraid" now, he charged, that the names they wanted named were going to come out.

LOOK AT THEM

"Look at them," he cried in scorn, pointing an accusing finger at them, "sitting there like whipped dogs."

Finally, Mr. Caouette "backed into" it.

He didn't read the Canadian Press report.

He simply based his three questions on it.

And there was the name of former associate defence minister Pierre Sevigny for all to hear—and now to read.

Finally, as the grimy, gritty day ground to its dismal end, Gordon Fairweather, Conservative MP for Royal, and former attorney general of New Brunswick, his voice shaking with emotion, cried:

"In God's name what are we doing this day?"

"This place is being fouled."

Bennett Adds Riding

will now be amended to provide for three new members.

He said in the corridor he changed his mind because of the government's two-river development policy.

"Because of the Peace River development in the north we added two seats there, and because of the Columbia River development we're adding an extra seat in the Kootenays," Mr. Bennett said.

Harry McKay, 18th MLA to speak on the bill during the afternoon, said, "This may be the last chance I have to speak for the Kootenays in the House."

He asked that if the government does nothing else to the bill it should at least split the Columbia River riding (formed by merging the present Columbia, Revelstoke and Kootenay ridings) because it is too large.

Mr. Tisdale, who spoke about the same time, said he regrets that the area called Saanich has lost its "centre of influence" in the legislature.

He said that while redistribution is a forward step "... it doesn't go far enough, and for that reason I'm not prepared to support section three (the realignment of boundaries) of this bill."

Mr. Robinson told the House "we should never have gone for redistribution in British Columbia this year."

He read a telegram from a voter in the Lillooet riding, which he said expressed the opinion of many people in the rural areas.

The sender of the telegram said he considers that "one vote out here is worth three at the bloodsucker, welfare and 'lets' who live in the larger cities in this province."

The Sacred backbencher concluded: "As it stands, I'm afraid I've still got to vote against it."

WELL KNOWN

In the petit mal type, the patient doesn't collapse in a convulsion. Rather, there are very brief, but usually frequent attacks which last only a second or less. There may be several or there may be dozens in a day. When this type of attack strikes, the patient doesn't fall down, or have any other strongly obvious symptom. Rather, he just has a momentary pause in activity. And then he goes on doing what he was doing before.

Both types can be helped by medication.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is a "flu" shot supposed to immunize against the common cold? — J.R.S.

No, it isn't. And it won't. However, some common colds are really a type of mild flu, so shots will protect against them. Some vaccine also protects against certain forms of what we used to call grippes, and that's helpful. But there are dozens and dozens of scores of varieties of the common cold that are not prevented by flu shots.

Sevigny Met Gerda 'Socially'

"A despicable, rotten little politician, who certainly should know better, came out with some gossip, gathered heaven knows where, stating that this woman, a so-called security risk he said, was from Eastern Germany and was now dead and that he wanted to pass on to the offensive in order to justify the despicable actions of his own friends and his own party."

LONG-FORGOTTEN

"What was a long forgotten incident has been brought to life again and Mrs. Munsinger, supposedly dead, supposedly an East German, has been found very much alive in Western Germany."

"I wish to state with no restrictions, that I have no intention of offering explanations or apologies to anyone. If there had been any explanations which would have had to be made, it would have been done to the person at my side (Mrs. Sevigny was at his side when he made the statement)."

"I happen to love and respect my wife and my children and they have given me ample proof that they love and respect me. We are in this fight, and it shall be a fight, together, and we shall see it through together."

"I shall let no one hurt my family more than it has been hurt already. I shall not permit anyone to slander me more than has already been done. I shall not permit the respected name of the Sevigny family to be dragged in the mud or to be disparaged against."

"UTTER CONTEMPT"

"I shall ask the soldiers, who by the thousands fought and bled with me during World War II, if they believe that Pierre Sevigny on any Sevigny for that matter could betray this Canada that the Sevignys love so much, and I shall expose to the nation in my name and in the name of the millions who are equally outraged our total and utter contempt for this cheap despicable little man, Lucien Cardin, the supposed minister of justice who has dishonored his oath of office, who has brought this odious, erroneous nonsense in front of the public for dirty, petty political reasons on yet, as he has implied, in order to secure political vengeance, who is disgracing Parliament and making a farce of his high cabinet position, who should resign both from the cabinet and Parliament or yet be expelled from both places which he is disgracing as they have never been disgraced before on since Confederation."

"NOT HIDING"

"To you, my brother Canadians, I say this: We are not hiding. I am not running. My head is carried very high."

"I am coming out fighting and believe me, I seldom lose a fight."

Mr. Sevigny is a stockbroker with the Montreal firm of Flood Woodstock.
